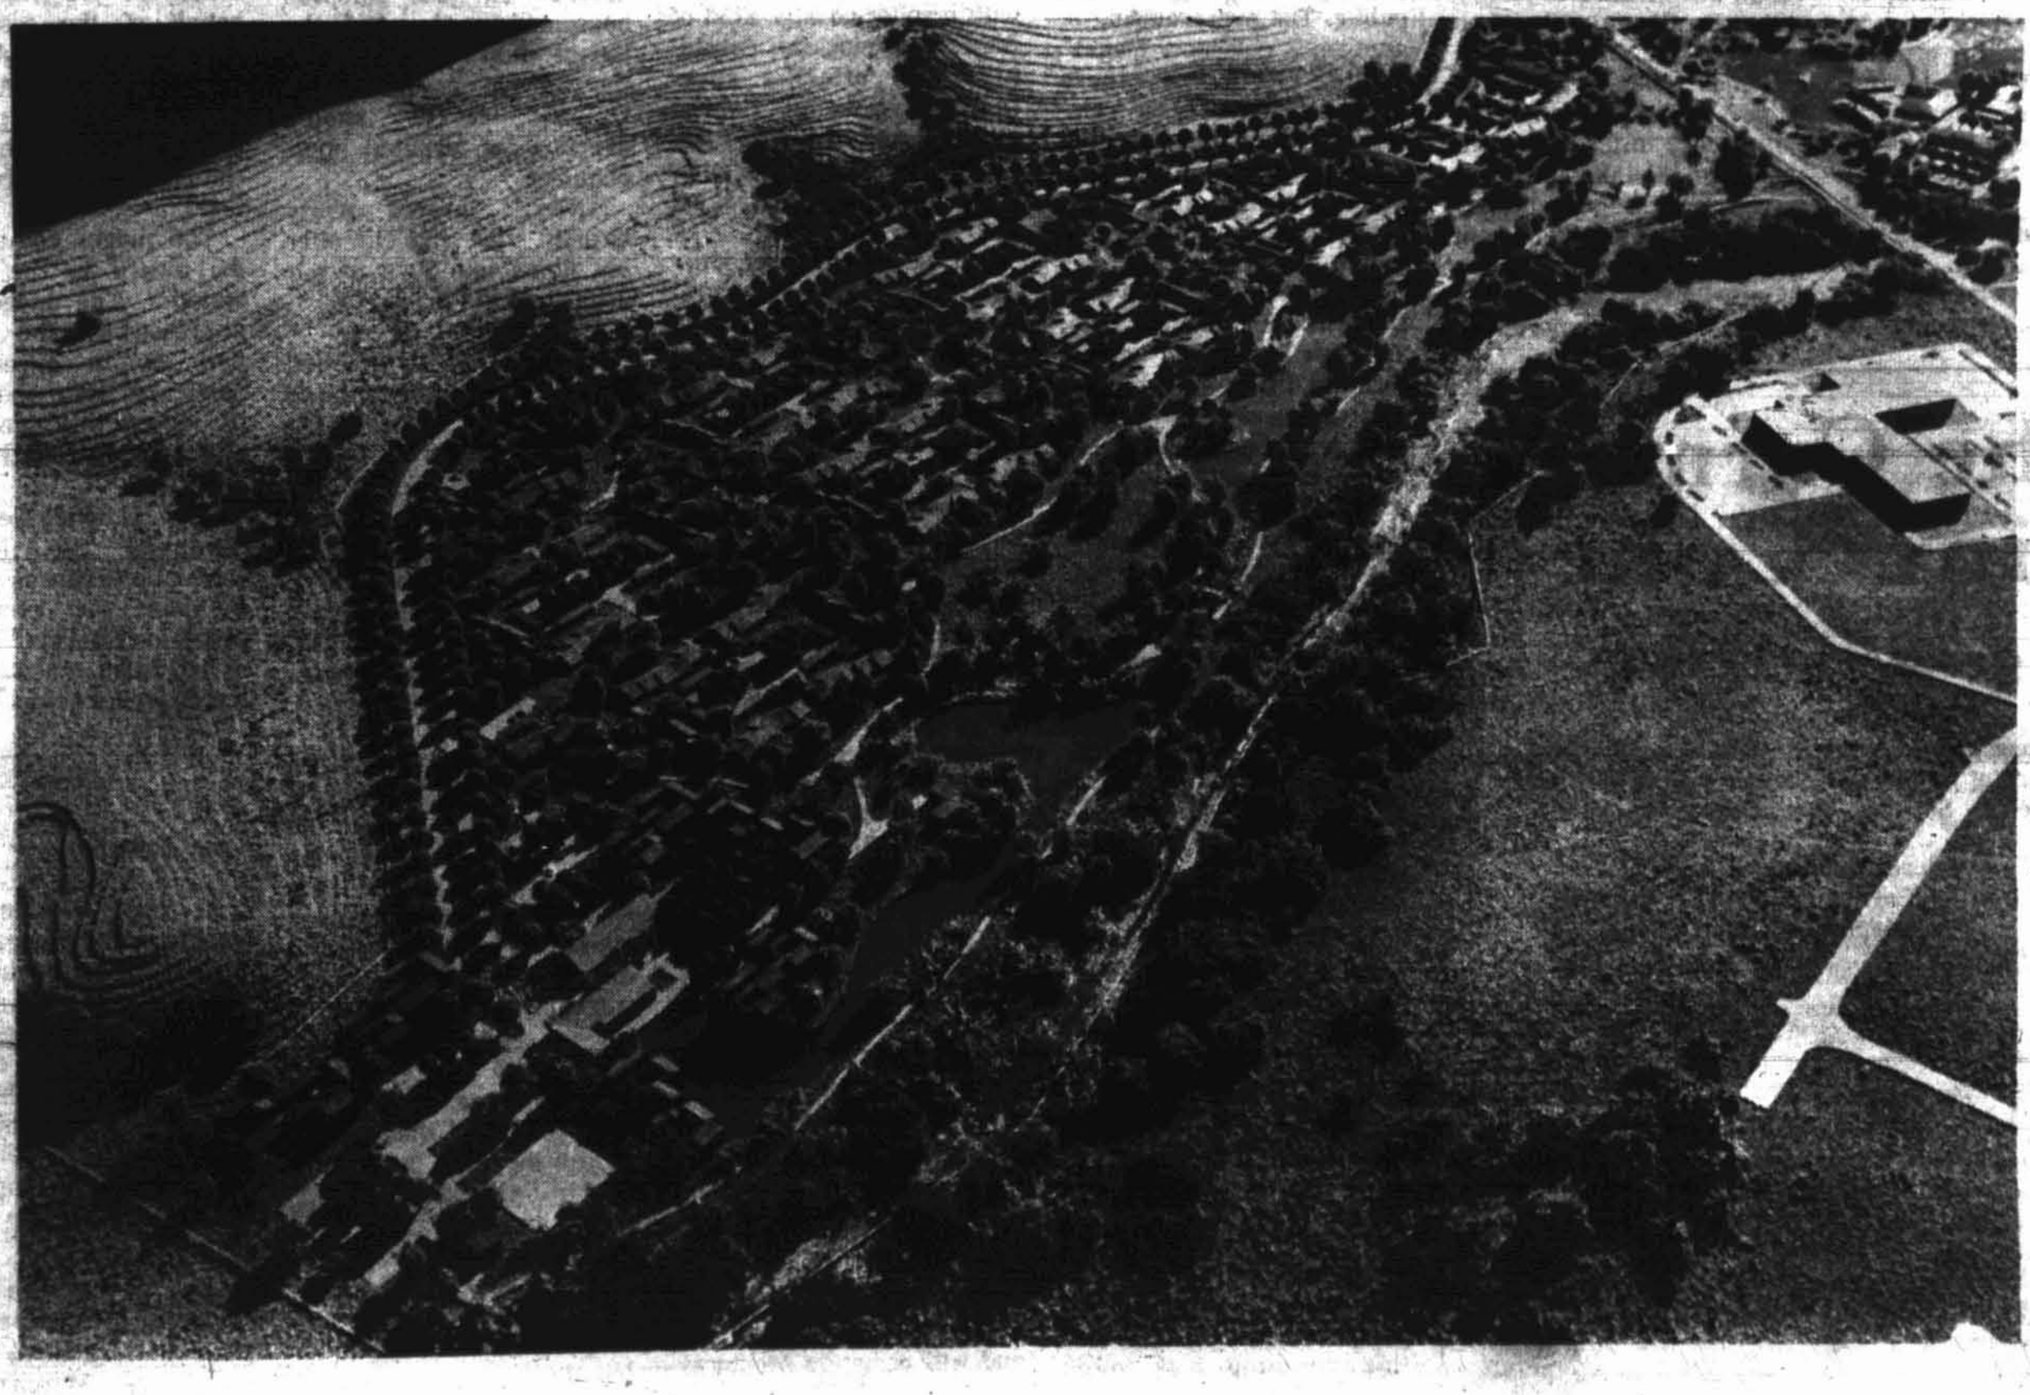
Plans for artichoke fields unveiled

PROPOSED PLANS for the development of the 292-acre Odello artichoke ranch at the mouth of the Carmel River straddling Highway 1 were presented to the County Planning Commission in Salinas yesterday. The $25 million project would be completed over a period of 12 years by City Reconstruction Co. of Los Angeles. In TOP PHOTO, the area to the west of Highway 1 (seen at left) would contain condominiums, lower density residences, a school and recreation area. The water in middle of picture is ¼-mile long man-made lagoon. A 600-unit lodge (extreme right) would be built on the far west portion of the property. The Carmel Meadows subdivision is at top of photo. Area to the east of Highway 1 is seen in PHOTO BELOW (the Stuyvesant Fish Ranch is at left, Highway 1 at top right, Carmel Center at upper right; and Carmel River can be seen arcing from lower left to upper right of photo). A 300-unit resort-spa would be built (lower left hand corner) together with more homes and condominiums. (see story, pp. 10-11).



Letters to the Editor

Letters to the editor are welcome. While there is no limit on the number of words, please write only enough material to adequately cover the subject. Anonymous letters are not acceptable, although names may be withheld on request.

Dear Mr. Supervisor:

Thanks to the excellent articles in the Pine Cone and Outlook, hundreds of Carmel and Carmel Valley residents are finally awakening to the significance of the fact that four large residential developments are currently being proposed for the lower Carmel Valley, and we are now seriously questioning the wisdom of the Board of Supervisor's recent 3-2 decision to permit an increase of density in the Val Verde area. Many of us earnestly believe that the Board should reverse that decision and declare a moratorium on any increase of density in Val Verde until the Board, and we residents, can see what the two Rio Road developments and the proposed Prudential Life Isn. Co. development in the Odello artichoke fields area are going to mean to all of us.

The sketch of the proposed 150 unit Riverwood development on Rio Road that appeared in the latest Pine Cone is dismaying, to say the least. It dramatizes the importance of the Board's decision to permit 6 units per acre in the Val Verde area, which is somewhat farther up the valley, adjacent to choice residential areas and fronting on the already heavily travelled Carmel Valley Road.

The lower valley is still a unique and lovely place and should not be turned into apartment-house row, but the rezoning of Val Verde at this time will be adding to our problem before we are even certain of its present magnitude. A moratorium on Val Verde rezoning for at least 3 years will give us an opportunity to see what impact the 150 units at Riverwood, and at the adjoining Carmel Lago development (when it gets underway), are going to have on the ecology, traffic patterns, sanitary problems and general liveability of the lower valley. We must be permitted to see if we can "live" with the Rio Road developments before the Board should act to extend the high density area any farther into the valley. And, most important, we should see what kind of development Prudential will be propsoing before the Board opens Val Verde to the developers.

Two of our Supervisors in private conversation (they will recognize themselves), use the now-accomplished Riverwood rezoning to "justify" rezoning in Val Verde and argue that 6 is less than 10. But one of those Supervisors also admits that the Riverwood rezoning was a mistake, and a glance at the map shows that the two areas are quite distinguishable. Rio Road, where Riverwood and Carmel Lago will lie, is in a flat, commercial type of area relatively isolated from major residential development, whereas the Val Verde area now in question fronts on heavily travelled Carmel Valley Road, where Middle School children pass, and it lies at a point just across the street from a quiet, desirable residential area which has on-efamily-per-acre deed restrictions.

Moreover, if the Riverwood rezoning is to be used to justify rezoning of Val Verde then, by the same reasoning, rezoning in Val Verde will be used to justify giving Prudential at least as much in the more remote artichoke fields area—and so it goes on, like a row of dominoes, mistake compounding mistake, until we have a real tragedy on our hands in what should be kept as naturally lovely an area as possible.

Two of our Supervisors (again, they will recognize themselves), privately express the opinion that Middle School and Rancho Canada Golf Course constitute a "logical" boundary for high density zoning, and that Val Verde can be "developed" without harm to the community. This is short-sighted and capricious, inasmuch as the golf course's lease depends on the continued solvency of the golf course, and may not be renewed in any event. Moreover, it ignores the possibility that Riverwood, Carmel Lago and Prudential developments may be all or more than the lower valley can absorb without irreparable harm. What the Board surrenders to developers can never be regained, and bringing high density into the Val Verde area at this time certainly would be both premature and undesirable.

We need tough and effective community planning if we are to prevent our lower valley from becoming just another congested eyesore, and we will be very grateful to any Supervisors who will support us in our desire to see the Val Verde decision reversed.

Yours very truly,
VICTORIA GIBSON

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir,

Copies of the attached letter were mailed to each of the five County Supervisors over the weekend. You are welcome to use all or any part of it, or none of it, at your complete discretion. We just wanted you to know that the Outlook's and Pine Cone's efforts are being appreciated.

Thank you,
VICTORIA GIBSON

Dear Editor,

There are two types of crime in this country. They are against property and public. The overcrowding of an area is not yet a "legal" crime. Both of these "crimes" have been committed by our elected Supervisors in Salinas when, by a 3 to 2 vote, they zoned apartment houses at the mouth of Carmel Valley.

The land along Val Verde Drive is rich farming land. The air is fairly clean, compared to L.A. The noise is at a tolerable level. The sewage problem is not out of hand. The beauty is there and it's a good place to ride a horse, relax and enjoy a small island of rural California.

Instead of one house per acre or 45 houses being built there in the future, 270 apartments can be built, starting with 45 for Arbor Development Company of Mt. View. Instead of horses, lettuce fields, grazing pastures, bees, organic gardens, and pets, the land is now "upgraded". Instead of a potential of 157 people, 945 can snuggle together between a shopping center and a 700 student junior high school. This "upgrading" was done inspite of the fact that 80 percent of the land already zoned for apartments in Carmel Valley has not been built upon.

The second "crime", the crime committed against the public was in the manner this rezoning was voted upon. It was voted against the wishes of the residents and the voters of Carmel and Carmel Valley as represented by their elected property owners association officials. In August, after a 4½ hour hearing, the Supervisors voted 5 to 0 to deny 6½ units for Arbor Development. In January after a two hour hearing that condensed the same August arguments, they voted 3 to 2 ito allow 6 units. The "crime" is that not only our own Mr. Branson and Mr. Smith led the about face, but that few reasons were given for the about face.

So what can we do? Where is the policeman to investigate these crimes? As Carmel and Carmel Valley become slurbs like Mt. View who will arrest those responsible three, five or ten years from now? The 45 apartments of Arbor Development have to obtain a use permit from the County Planning Commission. This is usually a formality where arguments are heard in regards to shake roofs vs asphalt shingles or the size of a sign. Septic tanks and traffic problems are examined. People from the audience may be heard. Also any supervisor may, at any time, bring up for reconsideration any action voted upon by the Board of Supervisors. Hope lives eternal.

Having recently returned from Europe, where we saw the consequences of "money interests" invading and "developing" Spain's formerly beautiful Costa Brava, we are deeply concerned about what can happen—almost overnight—to our own scenic environment and open-space surroundings...

The Costa Brava, stretching some 90 miles from near Spain's Mediterranean border with France down toward Barcelona, was once one of the "no tourist should miss it" drives of Europe, with a roller-coaster kind of road traversing the coastal hills and offering spectacular views of fishing villages and the blue Sea through framing forests, peaks, and canyons filled with flora and fauna.

During the last decade—particularly the past three-to-five years, we are told—outside speculators from other countries have bought up the land (relatively cheaply) and covered those hills and canyons and fertile valleys with an almost continuous procession of high-rise apartments, ticky-tacky subdivisions and flashy resort communities. Now, real estate offices, with flags of all nations flying and "Wilkommen" in ten languages on huge billboards, greet the traveler at nearly every turn.

Blocked are the prime vistas, bulldozed are whole hillsides of forest land, gone are the flora and fauna, all replaced by blacktop, concrete, steel, and glass! Gone, too, is the original pristine quality that brought people there in the first place, so that many costly construction units stand empty and deteriorating.

But, the damage is done—forever! That ravaged coast can never be returned to its virgin beauty.

This rape of nature can and will occur on Monterey Bay, at the mouth of our Valley, in our mountains, and down our Sur Coast unless every person who cares acts together with others who care, NOW, to save our Artichoke Fields and all the other magnificent unspoiled areas which bring visitors here from all corners of the earth and which provide day-by-day enjoyment and renewal of mind, body, and spirit for those who live here.

Let us act to conserve our heritage and pass it on to future generations!

only in Carmel...

BET YOU didn't know that Elizabeth Croftan, Carmel long-timer, has been a professional reader for visually handicapped attorney Eben Whittlesey for 27 years. Almost up to that faithfulness record is the fact that she has been a member of All Saints Church Altar Guild for 24 years.

THE SPCA BENEFIT Shop, through its manager Mildred Wollett, advertised two weeks running in the Pine Cone classified section for a garage to store furniture, adding "take free rent as income tax deduction."

Miss Wollett dropped by the office to cancel the ad. "We've got a garage," she advised us. "And guess who had it."

"Who?"

"Me!"

Wolly had forgotten that the garage of her own rental property, full of furniture for a dozen years, now was empty as the new tenant had neither car nor surplus household goods. And the tenant didn't mind having the garage used for the Dolores Street shop's overflow of donated merchandise.

"Now," smiled Wolly happily, "the shop can offer big items like TV's at our usual bargain prices."

HIS CLOTHES spelled "ranch hand"—the battered wide-brimmed hat, the tight faded jeans, the well worn short denim jacket, the scarred high-heeled boots. He was making his way into a bar on Saturday afternoon, just like any other Carmel Valley cowboy on an off day. But he was about 70 years old. And he was on crutches.

CARMEL CHESTNUT. That's the baby's name. She was born Jan. 9—and the fact didn't get into Pine Needles. One of the Pine Cone's peepers-and-snoopers overheard a conversation in an Ocean Avenue shop where the baby's pretty young mother, Alicia, was telling how much she and her husband loved Carmel.

So we called them up. It seems the new little girl's daddy, Merlin Chestnut, works in the Carmel Post Office, and although the couple lives in Monterey, they still love Carmel enough to name their first child for our town.

Roscelli awarded garbage franchise

The John Roscelli Corporation, Carmel's garbage collectors for more than 20 years, last Wednesday was awarded the city franchise for 10 more years.

Roscelli submitted the only bid for the contract. The bid adequately met specifications, City Administrator Hugh Bayless told the City Council.

The council unanimously approved the award.

One exception to the contract was granted. The council agreed that the company will not have to secure a faithful performance bond.

"We think they've proven they perform faithfully," said Bayless.

The bond would cost several thousand dollars a year, the administrator said.

Councilman Ken Brown, who helped prepare the new contract, said very few changes had been made.

Provisions for removing refuse from a horse barn were deleted because there are no longer any horse barns in Carmel, he said.

The major change provides for the removal of one large plastic bag of garden cuttings per week at an additional charge of $1 per month.

Commercial rates were also increased 50 cents per can.

Outlook wins top award for Excellence

The Carmel Valley Outlook won first place for General Excellence among California newspapers with circulation under 2500 at the 1971 annual convention of the California Newspaper Publishers Assn. in San Francisco last week.

Lt. Gov. Ed Reinicke, who made the presentations on behalf of the association, presented the first award plaque to George M. Dobry, who is editor and publisher of both the Carmel Valley Outlook and the Carmel Pine Cone.

The judges comments on the award to the Outlook stated: "The judges were impressed with the Outlook's fine job in covering its particular area, the photos, the substantial coverage, and its attractive appearance."

The Awards Ceremony climaxed the four-day convention and was attended by over 500 newspaper people on Saturday morning at the Fairmont Hotel, where the convention was held.

Overwhelming opposition to controversial decision:

Branson asks for rehearing on Val Verde zoning

The County Board of Supervisors Tuesday set an informal hearing for March 9 to further consider their rezoning of the Val Verde area in Carmel Valley.

Supervisor Willard Branson had hoped to find an opportunity at the meeting to reopen hearings on the issue.

However, County Counsel William Stoffers advised the supervisors that their recent rezoning decision cannot be rescinded.

"I found out a lot of people are objecting to the rezoning," Branson said at the meeting.

The statement echoed statements made by the supervisor Monday in the wake of strong opposition to the board's rezoning the Val Verde area.

"When I originally said I thought there should be no more hearings, I was thinking in terms of the same number of people as turned out at the earlier nine hearings," Branson said.

"It now appears there are large numbers of people, through a coalition of property owner groups, who want to be heard, and I'll adhere to my beliefs that the public should be heard.

"So I feel it's my duty to ask for a rehearing," he explained.

Last month, after nine public hearings before the Planning Commission and the Board of Supervisors, the supervisors voted 3-2 to change the zoning on the south-eastern corner of Val Verde and Carmel Valley Road from one to six units per acre.

That decision has provoked a rising crescendo of public protest from the Carmel Citizens Committee and several property owner associations.

CVPOA MOVE

At last Thursday's meeting of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association board of directors, a resolution passed unanimously to hire attorney Sean Flavin to block the Val Verde rezoning by court action, if necessary.

Flavin said Monday that any legal action on behalf of the CVPOA would await the outcome of Tuesday's meeting of the board of supervisors.

County Counsel William Stoffers said that technically the supervisors could not simply decide to call for further hearings. Under the law, they would need to adopt a "resolution of intention to rezone," and then refer the entire matter back to the Planning Commission for further study.

The Planning Commission would then call hearings and send a recommendation back to the supervisors, who would vote once again.

Stoffers said that no matter what happens, the board's action last month in increasing the density to six units per acre will take effect. Therefore, a "resolution of intention to rezone" means an intention to rezone from the six units per acre to something else.

Stoffers said that as far as he knew, such a reversal on a zoning case had never been taken in Monterey County before, at least so soon after the initial decision.

MASTER PLAN

In discussing the Val Verde rezoning last week, several CVPOA directors said they consider "progressive rezoning" the most important problem facing Carmel Valley.

"It seems to me that one of our primary purposes is to maintain the Master Plan," observed Frank Bresk. "The compromise we recommended was reasonable (2-4 units per acre on the west side of Val Verde, 1 acre minimum on the east side.) If we have the funds, I think we should take this to court."

Another director, St. E.P. Tyner, said he had heard that other developers were waiting to move in farther up the Valley as soon as there were a few more precedents along the lines of Val Verde.

"I would say write a letter (to the supervisors), get a lawyer and go to court," said Robert Marble, who then made the motion that carried unanimously.

"G" ZONE

On another zoning matter, the directors voted to reaffirm the CVPOA's strong opposition to a rewording of the "G" zone ordinance to permit high-density retirement communities.

This matter comes before the Planning Commission this afternoon on a request by Hacienda Carmel, which wants the "G" zone amended so that the retirement community will not be in violation of its use permit.

"The "G" zone, as now worded, permits hospitals, rest homes, sanitariums and clinics licensed by the State upon approval of a use permit. When the Hacienda originally applied for a use permit, the application stated that medical care would be provided for residents who bought into the corporation.

Since that time, however, Medicare came into existence, and the Hacienda lost its state license because its limited facilities did not meet the standards prescribed for Medicare coverage. Therefore, in order to bring the property into a legal use once again, the Hacienda corporation is asking for a change in the entire "G" zone ordinance to allow retirement communities in which all residents will be over 50 years of age.

"It's innocuous on the face of it," Tyner said, "but for them to become legal, it means anybody can come in and build a high density development. I'm very much alarmed."

Tyner noted that the Lower Valley Advisory Committee had recommended that, if absolutely necessary, the Hacienda be placed in a "special treatment" zone "as the least damaging thing that can be done."

The directors, expressing great sympathy for the predicament facing the residents of the Hacienda, agreed to send a letter to the Planning Commission repeating their earlier opposition to any modification of the "G" zone and recommending special treatment zoning if no other solution can be found.

WELL PERMIT

The board also voted to send a letter to the Board of Supervisors appealing the approval of a use permit to the California-American Water Company for a well and filter plant behind the Begonia Gardens.

CVPOA vice president Ed Lee, in urging the board to take action, said that conditions attached to the use permit by the Planning Commission do not provide adequate protection for vegetation and property farther downstream from the site of the new well. The Planning Commission stipulated that the company irrigate riverbanks on its own property, but said nothing about areas farther downstream.

Lee said he agreed with the water company that the well is needed to provide the county with enough water until the Super San Clemente Dam is completed in five years, "but they should put in conditions to protect the property and houses of people who live in the area."

"We are paying the price in Carmel Valley of having our river degraded," George Lockwood commented. "We're paying the price to have the rest of the county developed."

OTHER ACTIONS

In other actions, the newly-elected CVPOA board:

1. Named Frank Bresk "chairman of a secretary-finding committee," which means he is secretary by default until he can find someone to take over the job.

2. Appointed Robert Steinmetz as the CVPOA representative to the new Carmel Area Coalition.

3. Decided to hold the March board of directors meeting somewhere in the mid-Valley, to make it more convenient for residents in that area to attend.

City fathers condemn supervisors rezoning

Carmel's City Council has added its voice to the rising chorus of protest over recent zoning decisions by the Board of Supervisors. At last week's meeting, they adopted a resolution urging "County support of Carmel's zoning objectives," which cited three "major zoning actions taken by the County in direct opposition to the recommendations of the Carmel Planning Commission and various citizens and citizen groups."

The resolution asked the Board to reconsider its recent rezoning of 74 acres in the Val Verde area which would increase the density from one housing unit per acre to six per acre. The controversial rezoning caused a storm of protest from residents in the area who contended that the supervisors were ignoring the wishes of the greater majority of people in the area.

Councilman Frank Falge cited problems of sewage disposal which would be caused by population increases. He also pointed out that the dangers of flooding along the Carmel River and increased air pollution should be considered.

The "creeping deterioration" of the mouth of Carmel Valley was deplored by Councilman Eben Whittlesey, who agreed the new density allowances were excessive.

Carmel's Planning Director John Riling explained that the planning commission had objected to these recent rezoning actions, but the county had ignored the protests.

Although the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea does not have jurisdiction over the areas outside its city limits, these areas lie within its area of concern, and the county legislators in the past have usually gone along with the recommendations of the local bodies.

Text of the resolution follows:

RESOLUTION NO. 2757

A RESOLUTION URGING COUNTY SUPPORT OF CARMEL'S ZONING OBJECTIVES

WHEREAS, the area encompassed by both the General Plan of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea and the area assigned to this City within the Area Plan of the Monterey Peninsula encompasses the mouth of Carmel Valley, and;

WHEREAS, the Planning Commission and Staff of the County of Monterey are aware of Carmel's zone of influence and interest, in that this City is informed of proposed zoning changes within the area, and;

WHEREAS, within recent years, there have been three major zoning actions taken by the County in direct opposition to the recommendations of the Carmel Planning Commission and of various citizens and citizen groups. These actions concerned the rezoning for "Carmel Lago," "Riverwood," and the most recent was the rezoning of a 7½ acre site at Val Verde and Carmel Valley Road.

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES RESOLVE:

That the Planning Commission and the Board of Supervisors of the County of Monterey are strongly urged to give greater consideration to the wishes of the residents of the Carmel area and to the recommendations of this City on zoning matters that affect properties within the unincorporated areas adjacent to Carmel and inside Carmel's General Plan area.

PASSED AND ADOPTED by the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea this 3rd day of February, 1971, by the following roll call vote:

AYES: COUNCILMEN: Anderson, Brown, Falge, Whittlesey and Laiolo

New Carmel Area Coalition forms to oppose 'capricious zoning changes'

A new Carmel Area Coalition "concerned by the alarming tendency of a majority of the Board of Supervisors to ignore the wishes of their constituents and to make capricious changes in zoning." came into being this week.

Announcement of the formation of the new group was made Monday by Kenneth J. McGinnis of Rancho Rio Vista, who was elected chairman of an ad hoc executive board at a meeting last week.

Represented at the meeting were the Carmel Citizens Committee, and 20 representatives of resident and property owners groups in Carmel Valley, Carmel Meadows, Rancho Rio Vista, Carmel Knolls, Carmel Views, Val Verde and Mission Fields.

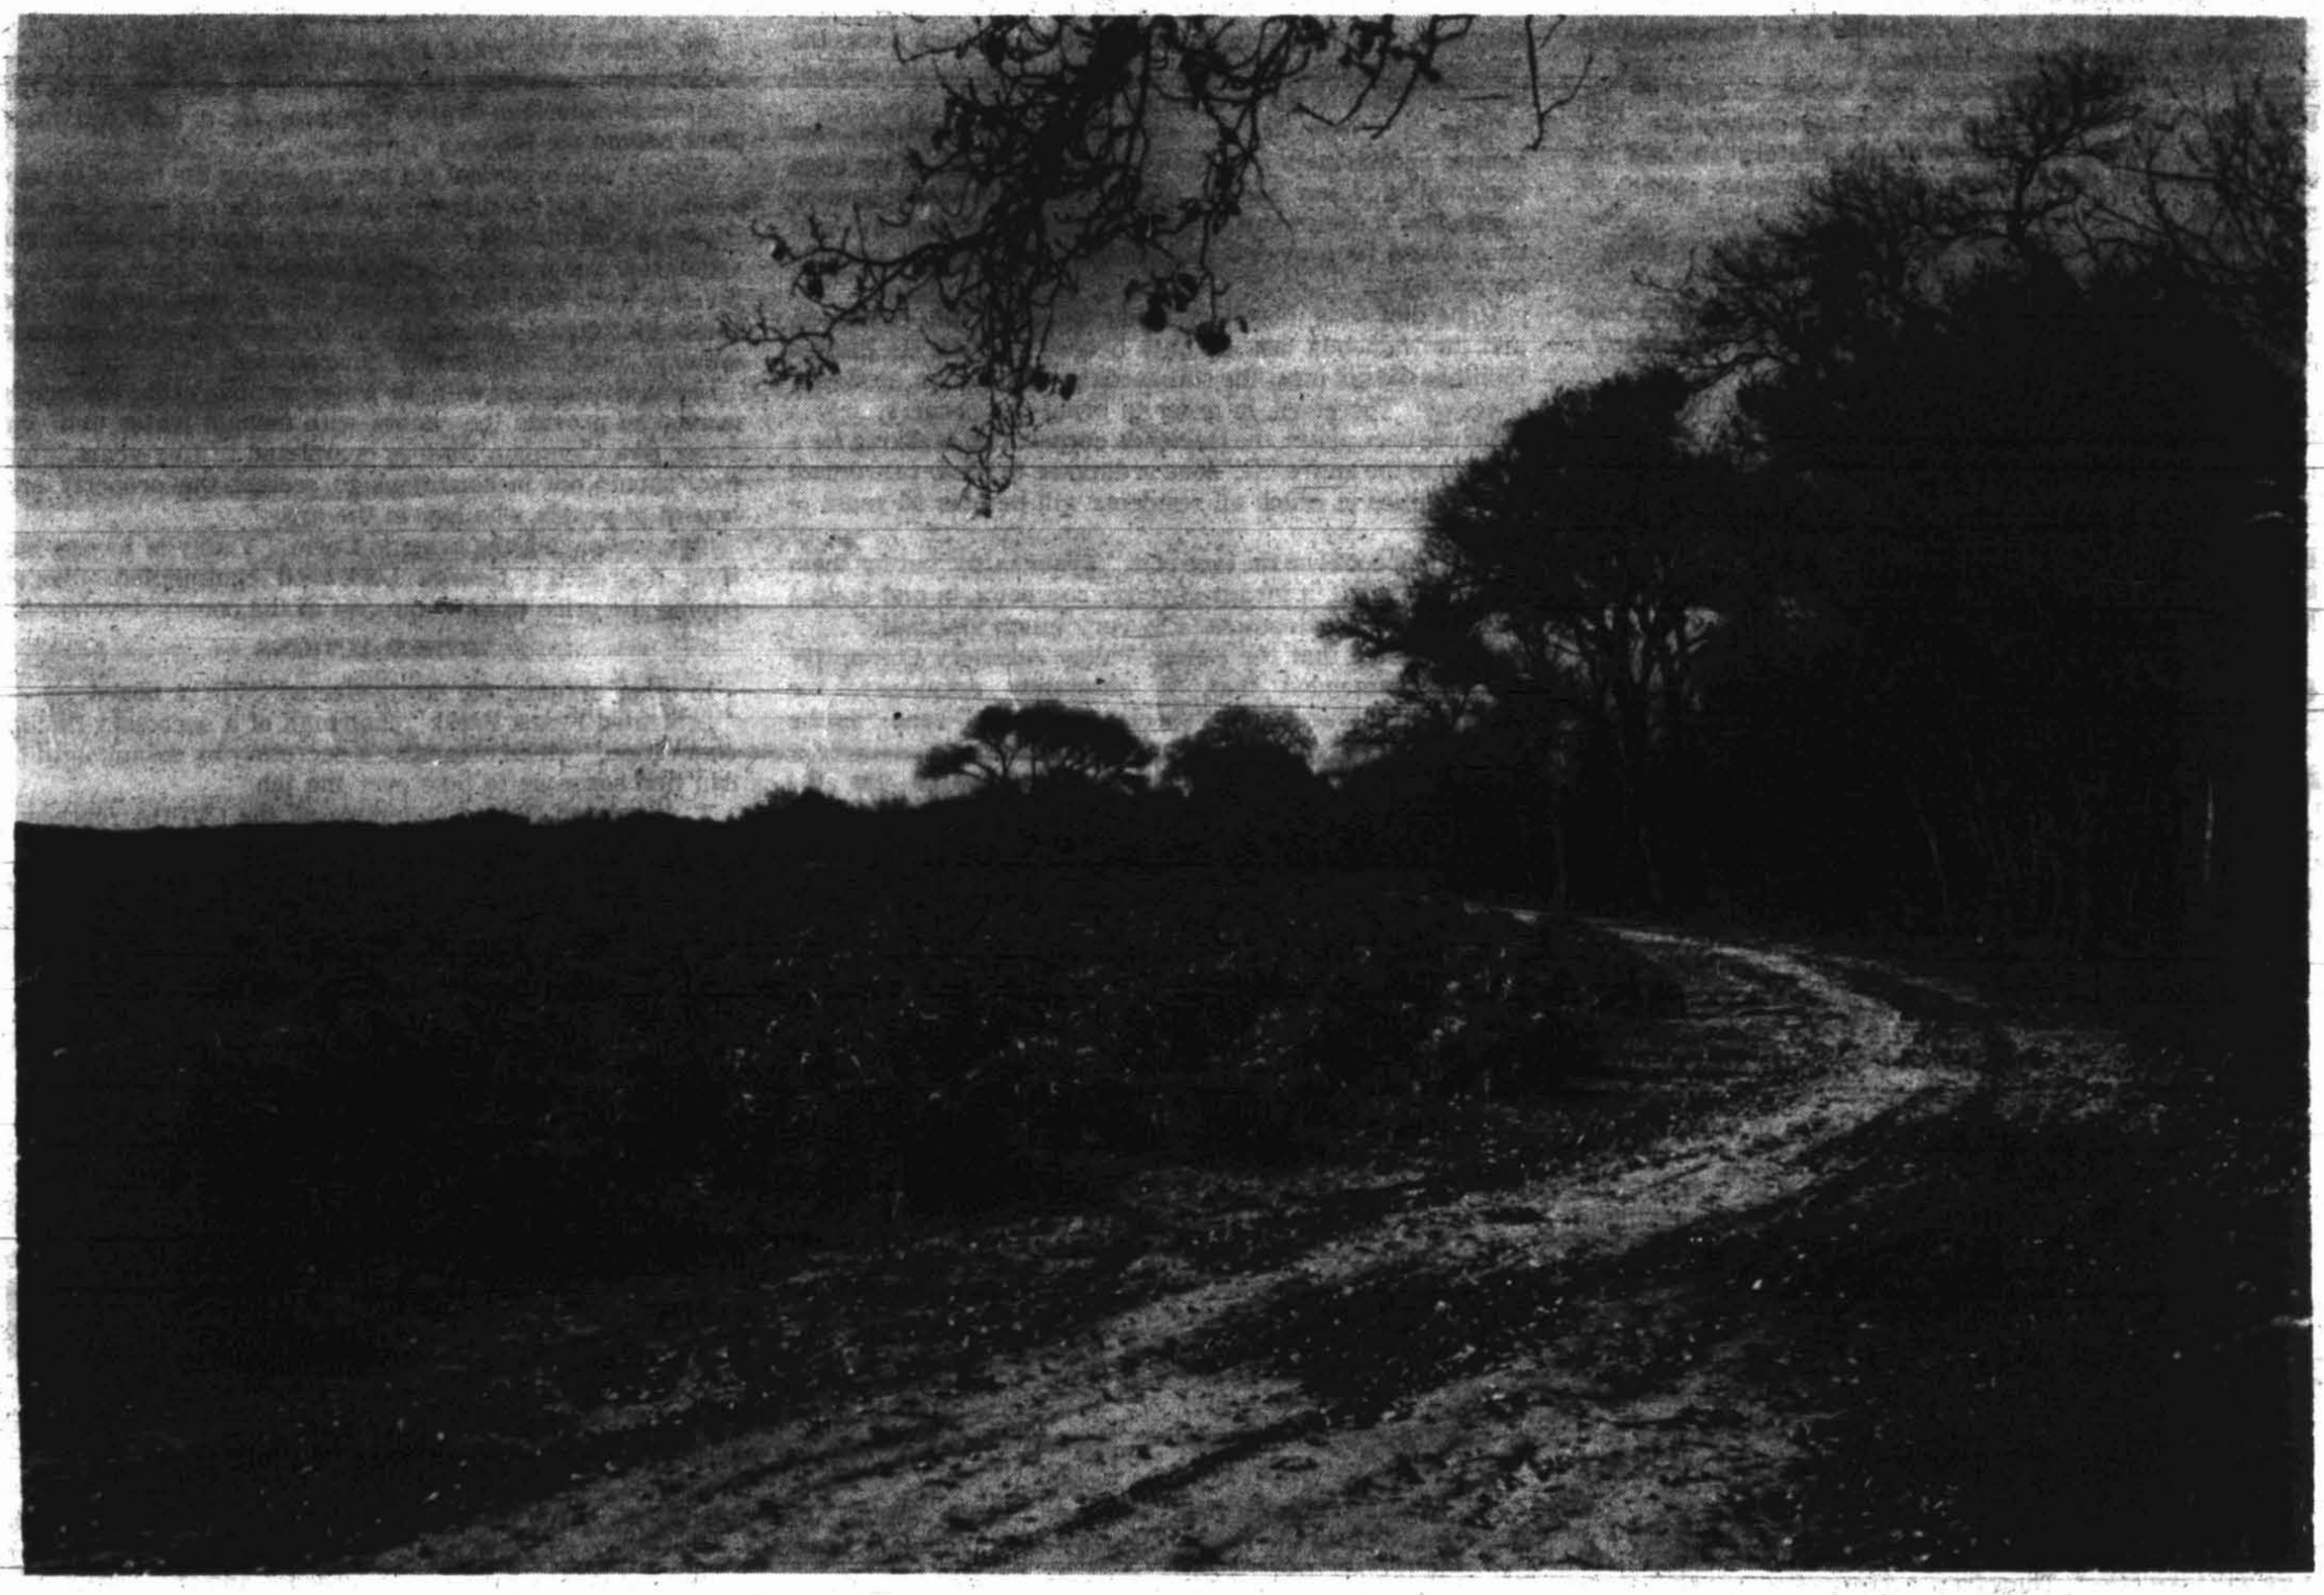
Explaining how the group sprang into existence, McGinnis referred to recent rezoning decisions by the Board of Supervisors which increased density in the lower Carmel Valley.

"These totally unacceptable changes have prompted residents of the City of Carmel, the coastal regions and the Carmel Valley to come together in search of an effective means of demonstrating their concern and their resolve to prevent further deterioration of the environment."

He went on: "The Carmel Area Coalition is not only unhappy with the recent action of the Board of Supervisors granting a zoning change to the Arbor Development Co. (in the Val Verde area) in total disregard of the overwhelming objections of area residents, but looks askance at the proposal of Southern California financial interests to turn the Odello artichoke fields (at the mouth of Carmel Valley) into a high-density housing development."

The Coalition will work through existing organizations and interested citizens, McGinnis said. "We will use every legal means possible, including petitions, publicity, public forums, direct contact with our elected representatives as well as precinct work at the grass roots level. We invite the support of all individuals and organizations who agree with our objectives to join in a common crusade to prevent the further rape of the region," McGinnis declared.

Inquiries can be addressed to the Carmel Area Coalition, Box 123, Monterey 93940, or by telephoning 624-0533.



THE ODELLO RANCH TODAY

Branson disqualifies himself from voting on Odello development

Supervisor Willard Branson announced yesterday he plans to disqualify himself from voting on any zoning or development plans related to the Odello artichoke fields if and when such issues come before the Board of Supervisors.

Branson told the Pine Cone he is taking the unusual step because the Prudential Insurance Company, for which he has worked for 19 years, has a preferred stock investment in the nature of a loan with City Reconstruction Corporation, developers for the Odello property.

Branson emphasized that Prudential is not in any way connected with the Odello development plans, which get their first public presentation before the Monterey County Planning Commission today.

"There is no way for a penny of that investment ever to come to me," he added, "but I feel the average person would say that I might put CRC in a preferred position, because of Prudential's stock investment, so I've come to the conclusion I should disqualify myself if it comes before the board.

"I'm certainly not trying to duck any issue, and I do plan to take an active part in any discussions regarding that property. I'm dedicated to the idea that it needs sensitive treatment."

Branson stepped down Feb. 1 as manager of Prudential's Monterey office. He will stay on as an agent with the firm.

He announced his intention to resign last December, citing time-consuming obligations as a county supervisor as the reason.

"I give so much time to political things, I didn't feel it was fair to go on taking the manager's salary," he explained. "Now I can devote myself to my political responsibilities."

Dr. Edward P. Marcucci, county planning commissioner...

'The Carmel Valley Plan is a flexible instrument'

Increasing attention is being focused upon the Monterey County Planning Commission these days as applications for zoning changes and use permits for developments in Carmel Valley proliferate like rabbits in spring.

What's happening? Where are we headed? What are the guidelines the commission is following?

These were some of the questions asked last week of Dr. Edward P. Marcucci of Carmel Valley. He, along with commissioner Keith Evans of Carmel, was appointed by Supervisor Willard Branson to represent the fifth district.

Dr. Marcucci has served on the planning commission for 12 years. He helped draw up the Carmel Valley Master Plan, and is generally regarded as the Valley's most authoritative voice on planning matters.

This is what he had to say:

What was your own thinking behind your decision to support the rezoning of 7½ acres on Val Verde Drive from one to six units per acre?

"There's not much more I can say beyond what I've already said. The fact we voted for Val Verde is not a precedent. The Planning Commission and the Board of Supervisors are trying to support Carmel Valley to keep it nearly what it is now ...

"You can't blame people living in that area who didn't want the rezoning for voicing their opinions, after all, this is a democracy. On the other hand, there were people representing 45 acres who were for it, and the opponents amounted to seven acres, as I recall.

"The fact that a majority of the property owners involved wanted the change was one of the facets, but I think the location of the land was the overriding factor, situated as it is between the Middle School and a shopping center and a high-density development to the south."

Has there ever been a time when the planning commission voted to reconsider a zoning decision?

"No, not that I've ever heard of. That would be up to the Board of Supervisors."

What is your reaction to the likelihood the CVPOA will go to court to try to prevent the rezoning taking effect?

"Then it's just a matter of the legality of the decision. It would become a contest between the CVPOA and the applicants, and we would be out of it."

Do you expect other property owners along Val Verde to apply for rezoning now?

"I would imagine so. The tax situation will more or less force them to apply for rezoning. I think it would be profitable for them to do so."

How do you balance the interests of the property owner or owners involved with the interests of their neighbors or the larger community?

"You get back to zoning. Any deviation from the zoning will require some justification. We try to adhere to the Master Plan and generally this will be the case. Val Verde will be cited as a deviation from that.

"Every application must be judged on its merits and the desires of the people in the area."

Is Carmel Valley under a moral obligation to absorb everyone who wants to live here?

"Only in so far as the amount of land and the division of land will accommodate these people. Morally one might think that people have a right to live wherever they choose, but actually it is controlled under the Master Plan.

"The Master Plan is a flexible instrument, also. It can be and has been changed from time to time, in accordance with majority opinion."

Do you think the Val Verde rezoning was in accordance with majority opinion?

"That's hard to say. It's usually the minority who become most vocal on an issue, and then because they're being heard, they become the majority. I really couldn't say what the real majority opinion is on that one."

If the Master Plan can be changed to allow greater density, can it also be changed to make it even stricter and reduce density?

"If we maintain the status quo with the Master Plan we're doing very well. This is an uphill fight. There will probably be attempts to change it one way or the other, and it will be hard enough to keep what we've got."

Foresee only 14,000 people in Valley by '80

What's the best estimate of how many people will be living in Carmel Valley by 1980?

The answer has varied widely over the years, depending upon who is doing the guesstimating.

But for now, the Monterey County Planning Commission is relying on a new study by consultant Larry Wise, which projects a population of 14,000 for the Valley in 1980 -- roughly double what it is now.

Commissioner Edward Marcucci said this represents a substantial downward revision from an earlier figure of 20,000, "in keeping with a reduced trend that was borne out by the recent census figures."

What are going to be the major considerations in considering applications for future developments in areas where the zoning permits them?

"I think sewage disposal is going to be one of the determining factors in approving any application, with roads second. Sewage is not as much of a concern where there is a one acre minimum because there is generally enough room for a drainage field."

Is the Planning Commission affected by the number of people who show up at a hearing to argue for or against a specific application?

"If a hearing is carried on over a matter of weeks or months, this does make a difference. The last hearing is very important, as we do take into consideration that if a number of hearings have been held, the people's rights have been considered.

"The number of people at hearings have a definite effect on the decisions made. The number of people are of greater importance than petitions. Petitions are rather impersonal, and can't substitute for a personal appearance. I think the flaw in the petition procedure is you have duplications, with husbands and wives and relatives, who actually should be listed as one name as far as numbers are concerned."

Would a coalition of property owner associations carry more weight before the Planning Commission than they do now individually?

"Undoubtedly. Here again, numbers are very important, pro or con. Of course this would be the case only if they represent the majority opinion."

What do you foresee for the mouth of the Valley 10 years from now?

"As you know, there are plans for the development of the ranches there. There's a Rancho San Carlos Plan and a Fish Ranch Plan. This type of development will depend entirely on the economic situation. I don't look for it in the immediate future, but in 10 years, it is my opinion that it will be developed. And this goes for the flat area at the mouth of the Valley too."

What about the rest of the Valley?

"East of the Village are all large holdings by ranchers, which I think will remain the way they are for the foreseeable future. I don't think these lands are going to be subdivided very soon.

"The rest of the Valley will develop generally along the lines of the Master Plan."

What about hillside development?

"I still haven't changed my mind on the percentage of slope. I'm for 2½ acres minimum above 30 percent, and below that a one acre minimum, maybe with clustering.

"I think Del Mesa Carmel is an example of very desirable clustering.

"I'm for anything to save the hillsides as much as possible without putting an undue burden on the developer, who has his rights also."

What changes do you think might be acceptable in last year's Hillside Conservation ordinance to improve its chances for passage?

"I'd say in roads. This is one place there is room for improvement over the present amendment.

"I'll listen to any new proposals. Maybe there are some areas involving roads we can talk about.

"Of course the commission will listen to whatever the county-wide hillside zoning committee comes up with with an open mind."

How do you feel about the current protests over zoning changes and prospective developments?

"People only remember their last defeat or victory. Over the years Evans and Branson and I have fought for the Valley and its environment and ecology many, many times. But it's only the last action that's remembered. It's discouraging at times, but it's a challenge. And I must like it, or I wouldn't stay on as a commissioner."

One-man performance of 'Moby Dick' in Carmel next week

If it is possible to imagine a genuine Irish-Californian with all of the Blarney charm, the disarming smile, the wit, and native shrewd intelligence and rugged good looks, coupled with sheer theatrical genius you have some idea of what Jack Aranson really is.

He will be in Carmel next week, bringing his one-man performance of "Moby Dick" to the Sunset Auditorium for a three-performance engagement, Feb. 19 and 20.

His vast theatrical experience began in California, extending to a two-year stint with the Old Vic Theatre School in London. This was followed by six years in Ireland with Anew McMaster's Shakespeare Company as well as his own productions for The Dublin Gate Theatre. This led to acting engagements in countries on the continent and finally back to New York with Orson Welles in King Lear.

This complete actor, director-producer also toured with Faye Emerson in "Witness for the Prosecution," acted on major TV networks, played numerous assignments in summer stock and was Shakespearean Director at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York.

Aranson's present repertory company, The San Francisco City Theatre, has presented him in a variety of roles from both the classical and contemporary repertoire including Macbeth, Hamlet, Captain Ahab, Hotspur, Christopher Mahon and Dylan Thomas.

Since distinguished work can often lead to distinguished associations it was only natural that Jack Aranson should attract and be attracted by a celebrated Irish actress of Dublin.

Mary Rose McMaster, a wide-eyed lovely and engaging lady of the theatre in her own right had had an enormously successful Shakespearean and Restoration Comedy tour in Australia before her marriage to Aranson in Dublin.

Four of the results of this delightful union of talents have been Jenny, David, John and Brigid Aranson, who, if charm and looks are meaningful, may well follow in the tracks of their distinguished parents. They look a little like a good nucleus for a modern "Our Gang Comedy."

If Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine are the "first couple of the theatre" on Broadway, then Jack and Mary Rose Aranson can certainly well be, as the San Francisco Examiner stated, "The royal couple of the San Francisco theatre."

JACK ARANSON as Captain Ahab in "Moby Dick," one of the twelve characters he will portray in the production Feb. 19 and 20 at Sunset Theatre in Carmel.

Tickets for Friday evening, Feb. 19 at 8:30 and the Saturday evening and matinee performances of "Moby Dick" are available at Carmel Music Co., Carmel; Abinante's, Monterey; Community Services, MPC; Special Services, Fort Ord; and at the box office the evening of the performances.

Market collecting coupons to buy kidney machines

The Carmel Drive-In Market is accepting Betty Crocker coupons in cooperation with the Artificial Kidney Foundation of California for the purchase of home artificial kidney machines.

Mrs. Lester Arnold, owner of the market, located on the corner of Dolores and Eighth, said more than 200,000 coupons have been collected state-wide since the drive began. Some 600,000 coupons are required to purchase a kidney machine.

The Betty Crocker coupons are on Betty Crocker products, as well as other General Mills grocery products.

More than 10,000 Americans die each year of kidney failure. This tragic toll could be lessened with the use of kidney machines.

General Mills, who will buy machines for 600,000 coupons, said recently that they will honor the collected coupons only until May 1, 1971.

Mrs. Arnold, urging Carmel residents to do their share, said, "Kidney disease is the only disease which causes death due to lack of funds. Won't you please donate your coupons and give someone a chance to live?"

Those warm fireplace ashes can be dangerous!

The Carmel Fire Department issued a word of caution this week to all Carmel residents who have fireplaces.

Two major residence fires during 1970 were the result of placing warm ashes in a combustible container near flammable objects, Fire Chief Bob Updike said. The damage from these two fires alone was $1,800. Other fires with smaller or no damage were also of this origin, he said.

Several of the vehicle fires during 1970 were caused by hot ashes being placed with trash which was then picked up by the garbage trucks. "If you have ever seen your Fire Department extinguishing one of these garbage truck fires, you realize what a mess it is and the amount of time involved. The entire load must be dumped, extinguished and then reloaded," Updike explained.

He offered these words of caution: "When cleaning your fireplace, make sure the ashes are cold. Wait two or three days after your last fire and place the ashes in a non-combustible container away from the house and any flammable objects.

"Fire loss in our City can be considerably reduced by awareness of common fire hazards."

City fathers defer action on landscaping

The City Council last week set aside several municipal projects at the recommendation of the council's Committee on Lands and Improvements.

Committeeman Frank Falge recommended the city "abandon for the time being" consideration of landscaping work on Ocean Avenue and at Sunset Center.

He pointed out that the city has gained a gardener and forester who are "very actively on the job" who can be expected to suggest and implement landscaping improvements in the course of their work. A "landscape expert" would be superfluous at this time, he indicated.

The Ocean Avenue project concerned planting areas between Carpenter and Junipero.

The Sunset project was part of a proposal for a preliminary landscape master plan for the cultural center.

Deferring action will also give the new Sunset manager, Frank Riley, "time to become better acquainted with priority needs at Sunset," the committee suggested.

Falge and co-committeeman Bernard Anderson also recommended "no immediate action be taken" on a consideration to upgrade city lighting. The council unanimously accepted the recommendation.

The committee had been studying a change from incandescent to mercury lamps.

"There are other light sources with more favorable color that might be considered in the future," the committee reported.

Falge said a switch would also cost the city an additional $435 a year.

Councilman Ken Brown suggested that this seemed a small price if mercury lamps would indeed improve the quality of the city's lighting.

Falge replied that "bombastic letters to the editor" had been written complaining about the artificiality of lighting following installation of mercury lamps at Sunset Center.

City Administrator Hugh Bayless also pointed out that the first purse-snatching ever in the Sunset area followed installation of the mercury lamps.

Bayless revealed a study he had done which correlated "well lit areas" with purse-snatchings and strong-armed robbery.

On a street map of Carmel where street lights were indicated, he superimposed a map showing the locations of purse-snatchings and robberies reported to the Carmel Police Department over the past five years.

"Street lights seem to be focal points for street crimes," Bayless concluded.

"Maybe we ought to put in black lights," suggested Mayor Barney Laiolo.

SPRAYER

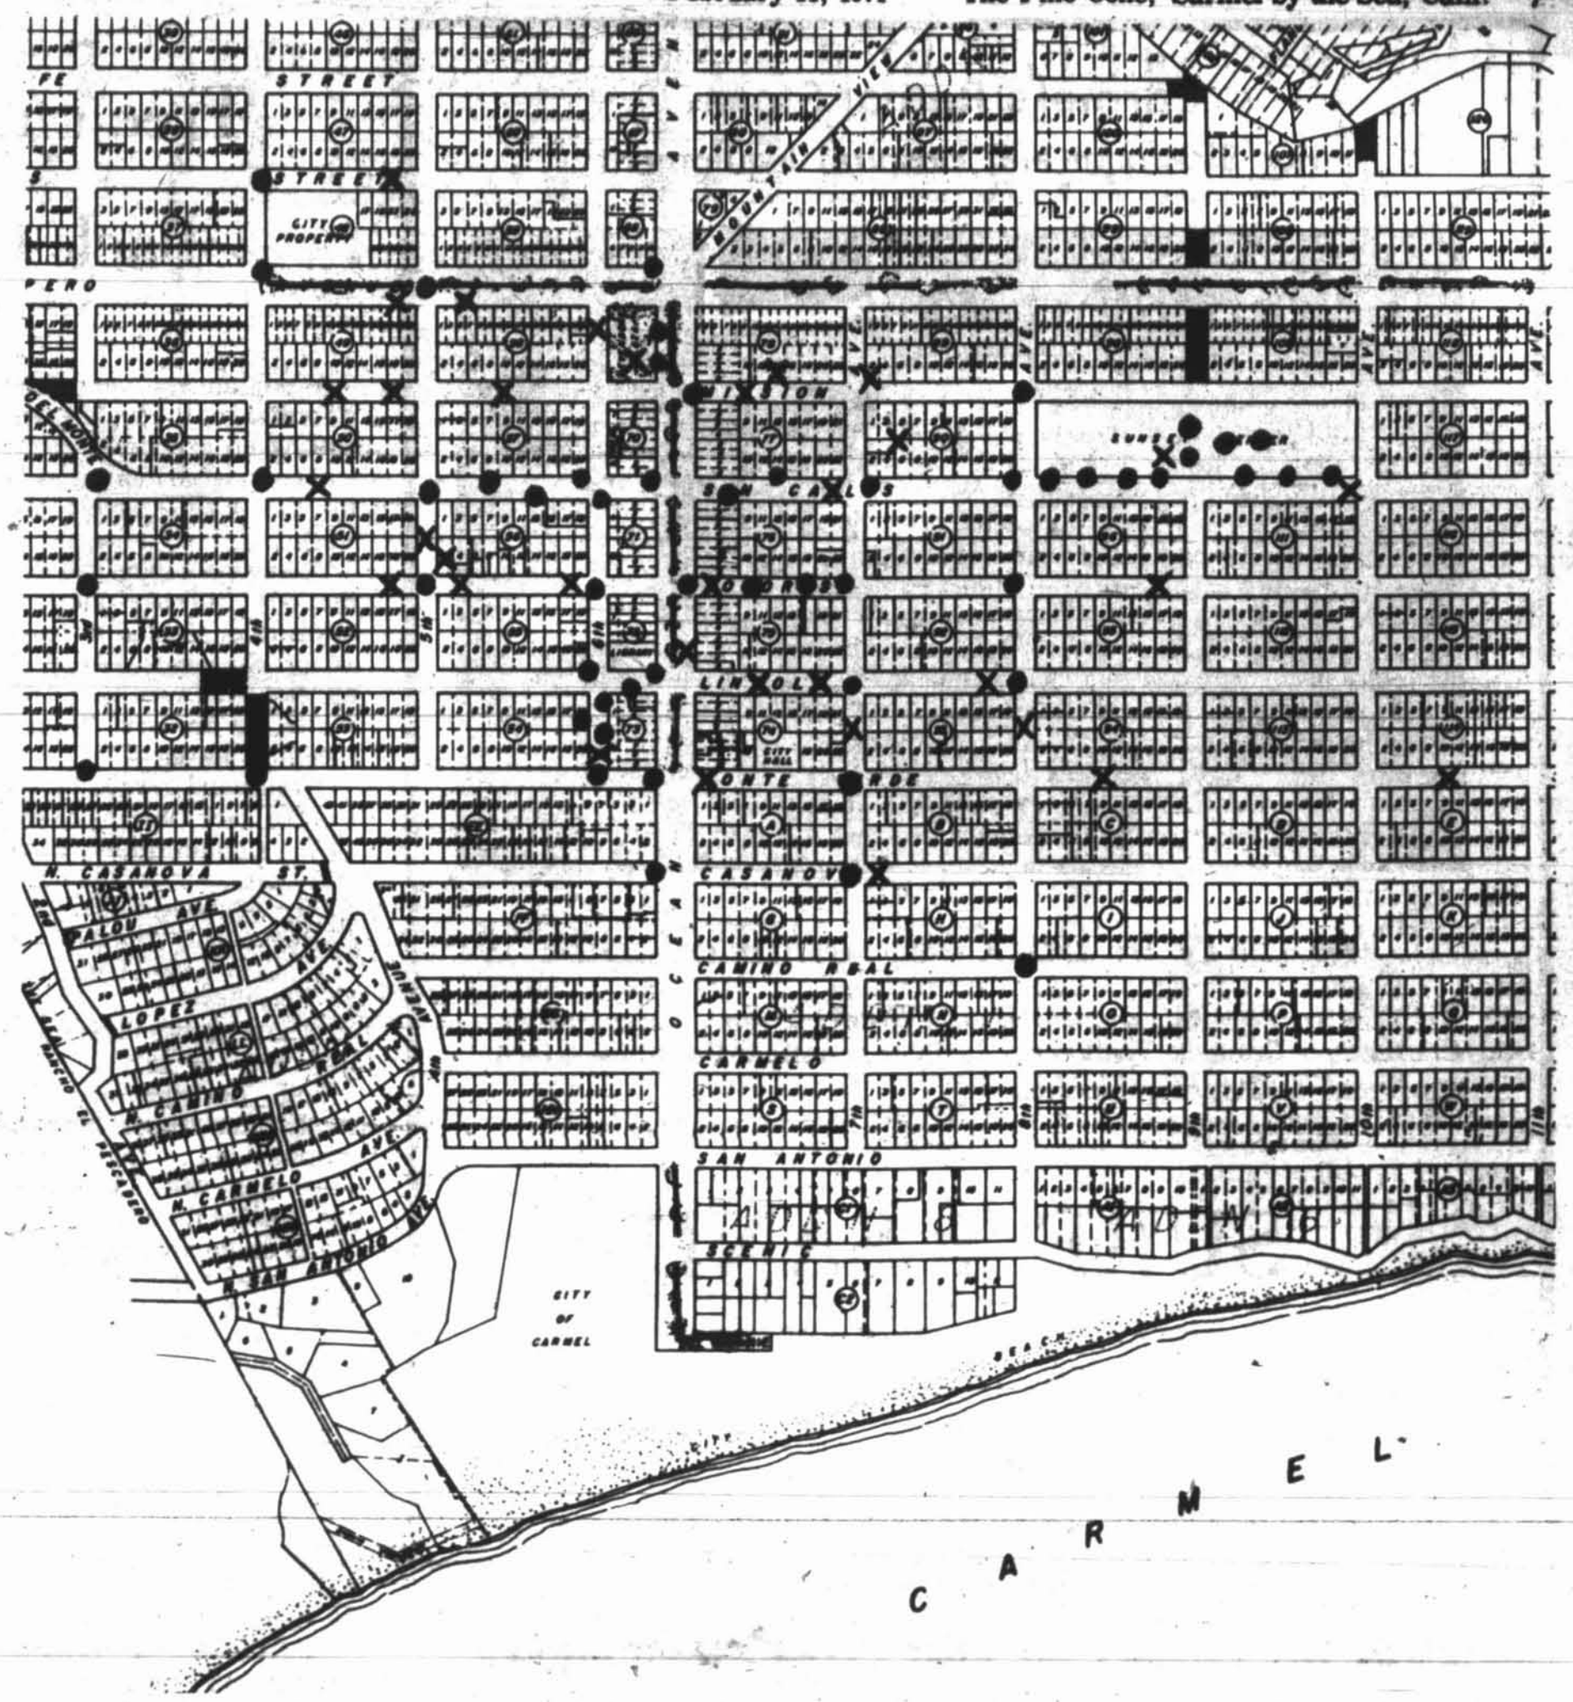
The council did agree to the recommendation of the Cultural Commission to buy a paint spray outfit for Sunset Center.

The cost is $940.

Sunset Manager Riley stated that the center needs extensive painting.

"We can either hire someone to do it or we can buy a spray outfit and do it on our own time with our own people," he said.

The council agreed unanimously that the latter course would be more economical.



A MAP which seems to correlate the appearance of city street lights and purse snatchings and muggings was prepared by City Administrator Hugh Bayless. The dots indicate lights; crosses, snatchings or muggings over a five-year period. Perhaps we should do away with all street lights, muses Bayless. Mayor Barney Laiolo facetiously suggested installing black lights. The map was referred to during last week's council discussion of new lights for the city. They turned down the proposal.

Tree cutting ordinance goes back to drawing board

A preliminary version of an ordinance to regulate tree cutting on private property was considered momentarily by the City Council last week.

The council, informed that the city attorney and administrator wanted to make minor changes in wording, agreed to continue the matter to the next regular meeting, March 3.

"We should always be the last to pick things over," said Councilman Eben Whittlesey.

City Attorney William B. Burleigh said Monday the changes in the ordinance will be structural.

"The effect won't be much different," he said.

Both Burleigh and Administrator Hugh Bayless emphasized that the rewording will not violate the intent of the ordinance as it was originally prepared by the city Forestry Commission.

Bayless indicated last week clarification is needed for a section which outlaws cutting "...on a vacant lot or on any lot where remodeling of an existing building is to be done, or on a lot subdivided from an existing lot on which there is a building or buildings..."

Whittlesey, a lawyer, peinted out the phrase's weakness.

"For instance, would it cover a lot on which a house has burned down?" he asked rhetorically.

Burleigh said the reworded ordinance will be ready "within a couple of weeks."

The version presented last week reads as follows:

Regulation of the cutting of trees on vacant lots and on lots where remodeling or subdividing is to be done. It shall be unlawful to cut down or otherwise destroy or authorize the destruction or cutting down of any living tree larger than 2 inches in diameter at the height of 4.5 feet situated on a vacant lot or on any lot where remodeling of an existing building is to be done, or on a lot subdivided from an existing lot on which there is a building or buildings, without a permit from the City Forester.

Application for permit. Before issuing a building permit, the Building Inspector will inform the builder of the law governing removal of trees, and will notify the City Forester of the request for a permit. The City Forester in granting or denying a permit shall be governed by the standards set forth in Section 1231.b.

Where applications filed. Applications for authority to remove trees where a City Forester permit is required shall be filed with the City Administrator on forms provided for the purpose. The tree removal permits issued under this article will require no fee.

Penalty. Removal of trees, without a permit as required above, shall be a misdemeanor and shall be grounds for revocation or suspension of any permit granted for construction or remodeling of buildings or for subdividing land.

Appeal. Any appeal from a decision of the City Forester shall be made to the Forestry Commission. Any further appeal from a decision of the Forestry Commission will be made in the manner described under Article 1, 1231.01.

Forester to speak at CBA dinner

City Forester Robert Tate will be guest speaker at the winter dinner of the Carmel Business Assn. Thursday, Feb. 25, at the La Playa Hotel.

Tate will speak on the history of Carmel's urban forest, what we are doing to preserve it, and what we are going to have to do in the future to insure its survival.

Dinner is scheduled to start at 7:30. A social hour will precede it at 6:30.

Members and all interested persons are invited. Mail checks for $6.50 per person to CBA, Box 4444, Carmel, giving full name of guests for identification stickers which will be at the door.

Reservations must be made by Tuesday, Feb. 23, according to Harriet Meyer, executive secretary.

944 dwelling units, lodge, sp

City Reconstruction Co. of Los Angeles unveiled its $25 million plan for the development of the 292-acre Odello artichoke fields at a meeting of the County Planning Commission in Salinas yesterday.

The ranch lies at the mouth of the Carmel River, straddling Highway 1.

The plan calls for gradual development over a 12-year period.

Included are 440 units of "medium density residential cluster" on 22 acres, which will be condominium-type dwelling units.

A "low density residential cluster" of 504 homes would be constructed on 72 acres, occupying 25 per cent of the full 292 acres.

An unexpected innovation in the overall plan is the projection of a 600-unit lodge at the far western end of the property. This lodge would be twice the size of the largest hotel on the Peninsula, the 300-room Del Monte Hyatt House in Monterey.

Also included in the plan is a 10-acre spa-resort, which would have room for an additional 300 units.

A new grade school would be built on the south end of the western ranch property alongside Highway 1.

Also shown in the preliminary plans are 23 acres of "major parkways," 63 acres of greenways, 30 acres of man-made lagoons and 42 acres of river-marsh preserve.

The plan was outlined with the help of a scale model by Kalvin Platt, a principal in the firm of Sasaki, Walker Associates, Bay Area site planners and landscape architects.

Similar presentations are planned for other interested groups on the Monterey Peninsula during the next few weeks, and formal application to the Commission will be made "shortly."

Platt said the project is being designed "to harmonize with the natural character of the land, more than half the total acreage being left as permanent open space or for open use purposes."

The full property frontage on Highway No. 1, which bisects the ranch, "will be enhanced to assure an attractive open space break" between the Monterey Peninsula and the Carmel Highlands regions to the south, he indicated.

The ranch, with its flat acres, is bounded on the north by the Carmel River, on the west by a dike which separates it from a State bird sanctuary and the beach area of Carmel State Park, on the southwest by the Carmel Meadows residential community and on the southeast corner by the Stuyvesant Fish Ranch.

"The heavily tree-lined Carmel River will be fully conserved and existing vegetation will be enlarged by creation of a mjaor greenway," Platt stated. "All of the natural marsh areas on the western edge of the property also will be preserved, protecting the bird sanctuary."

A series of new man-made lagoons, covering a total of 30 acres, will extend through the length of the project and plantings of flowers and several thousand trees is planned.

Structural elements "all with a low silhouette," include a two-story lodge with a maximum of 600 units, a Spa-resort of 300 units, a recreation center and residential clusters totaling 944 units.

The planned density of 10 rooms per acre for the lodge and the spa is equivalent to the Resort Hotel regulations for the rural G district of the County; density of the remaining residential development is equivalent to 4.67 units per acre.

Residential development will include homes in clusters. There will be groupings of two-story residences "for variety and architectural richness," Platt said.

Recreation facilities include a beach and tennis club and provision for small boat sailing on the large lagoon west of Highway No. 1, riding stables and trails along the Carmel River Preserve and hiking trails linking to the marsh preserve, beach and wildlife sanctuary. Special health facilities are to be incorporated in the Spa-resort area at the east end of the project.

Platt said that walkways, courtyards, heavy planting areas and unencumbered views are provided for all elements of the project. Entryways and private patios for the residential units will be "intimate" and there will be a number of common green areas for "at-home family-type recreational activity."

A pathway will extend from the lodge and recreation center at the west end of the property to the Spa-resort on the east end, Platt revealed, with access under the existing Carmel River bridge for horses, bicycles or pedestrians to cross the highway.

The area west of Highway No. 1 is expected to be developed first, Platt indicated.

The ranch has been in the hands of the Odello family since the early 20's, with Emilio and Bruno Odello, sons of the original owner, the current owners. A contractual agreement for the development of the property has been arranged by the Odello brothers with City Reconstruction Corp., developers of several residential complexes in California and the midwest. This agreement provides for the Odellos' "long-range involvement" in the development of the property.

Donald G. Whiteman, president of CRC, was present at the planning commission meeting.

Plans for the property envision the development being staged over a 12-year interval and a probable investment in excess of $25 million, according to Whiteman.

Artichoke farming will be phased out on a gradual basis to coincide with the development schedule, he said.

Commenting on the sale, the Odello brothers said, "We are expecially pleased to have interested CRC in developing this property. Since we first concluded four years ago that we could no longer afford to farm the land, we have been seeking a buyer, such as CRC, whom we felt would develop it in a manner which would be pleasing and compatible with the area around us. are so certain that CRC's development will be a definite asset to the community that we intend to retain our own homes overlooking the site."

The Odello Ranch has been primarily an artichoke farm for nearly 50 years and had been a dairy farm prior to that. Decision to sell was precipitated by several factors, the Odellos said. These included tax assessments based on the land's development potential and not on its current use; greatly increased labor costs; and the continued presence of large numbers of plume moths which destroyed 40 percent of last year's crop.

The proximity of housing developments—Carmel Meadows and Mission Fields—on two sides of the property prevents spraying of the deadly toxic spray needed to exterminate the moths, the Odellos explained.

George Bestor and Associates, Monterey, are the engineers for the project.

Statement of 'plan concepts' by developer's architects

The 292-acre Odello Ranch lies at a unique confluence of river and lands.

Situated at the southern end of the Monterey Peninsula and at the beginning of the rugged Big Sur country the Ranch, with its flat acres of neatly lined rows of artichokes forms a natural demarcation between Carmel Valley and its river, and its two adjoining and vastly different land areas.

Highway 1, which traverses the ranch, allows the passerby a major open space break at this point, further emphasizing the scenic importance of the site and its role as a transition between the two major geographic regions, and also as the end of the Carmel River valley.

Our Plan for the Odello Ranch lands reflects these major regional considerations. The Plan proposes a major open space system to conserve and enhance the regional values associated with the Ranch in its present usage. The concept is an architecturally controlled residential and resort community of buildings designed to harmonize with the natural character of the land. Reflecting the conservation and development issues, the heavily tree lined Carmel River through the ranch will be fully conserved saving all the vegetation and will be enlarged by an adjoining major greenway.

Where the river meets scenic Highway No. 1, the open space extends to the full property frontage to preserve the feeling of an open space break between the Monterey Peninsula and Carmel Highlands regions. All of the natural marsh areas on the western edge of the ranch will be preserved, protecting the nearby wildlife sanctuary.

The major greenway contains a series of lagoons increasing the visual exposure to water areas for those traversing the ranch on Highway No. 1 as well as for those living within the Odello community. The rich agricultural history of the lands is reflected by large plantings of flowers and thousands of trees within the greenways. The permanent homes of the Odello family on the ranch will be preserved in their present location and will overlook the greenway allowing a continuity of residence for the Odellos.

Envisioning a land useage which allows more than half the acreage to be left in open use or permanent open space—such as the river and its marshlands in 42 acres, open green, walk, and parkways of 86 acres, and two large man-made lagoons totaling more than 30 acres—the plan has clusters of homes and recreational focal points around this major open space system which also includes 10 acres for a school.

Within the ranch 944 units of residences will be clustered in a 4.67 per acre density along the greenway and lagoons, all with views toward the tree-lined river and or the adjacent open slopes.

At the western end of the ranch, the top of the existing dike that separates the developed lands from the natural preserve areas is a pedestrian promenade related to low-silhouette lodges grouped around common recreation facilities and the lagoons. These visitor accommodations are two stories in height and built over, to completely cover, the necessary parking areas which accompany them.

The lodges at the western end of the property, with an ultimate size of 600 rooms, vary in layout, type of units and access, to create a series of rich roof textures and shapes. Units are oriented to afford distant views of the beaches and marshes on the other side of the existing dike or nearby orientation to the planned lagoons.

Their presence is carefully set back and related to the western exposure to the natural areas screened by existing vegetation. The richness of character in walkways, pedestrian areas, courtyards and heavy planting areas draws upon the character of adjacent Carmel-by-the-Sea.

On the eastern end of the property, another visitor accommodation of 300 rooms on 10 acres takes the form of a Spa-resort with special health and recreational facilities.

The resort is planned to be favorably related to the fine climate at the Odello stie in this area.

Residential development is cluster homes that are predominantly one story. There are a few groupings of two story residences within these clusters for variety in units and architectural richness. All of the units are related to the larger open space system and to smaller greenways that connect through to the lagoons, riding and hiking trails in the greenways.

A landscaped parkway runs along the entire extent of the property with one major intersection at Highway No. 1. The parkway provides access to each residential cluster and its resident and visitor parking areas.

Access within the cluster is by drives and parking courts having views of the greenways. Entryways to the units are intimate in a scale and the open spaces vary from smaller private patios near the units to common green areas and then to the major greenways.

Several of the residential clusters are medium density with these larger buildings related to recreation facilities throughout the open space system. These facilities vary from small boat sailing and a beach and tennis club along the largest lagoon west of Highway No. 1, to riding stables and riding trails along the Carmel River Preserve and hiking trails linking to the Marsh Preserve, Beach and Wildlife Sanctuary.

In addition, there will be a linkage from the lodge and its recreation center at the west end of the property through to the Spa-resort on the east end of the property with access under the existing birdge over the Carmel River so that horses, bicycles or pedestrians would not have to cross the highway.

The variety of residential uses from the one-story low density cluster homes to the two and three-story medium density clusters indicates a potential range of unit types and population.

Environment and elections-Part IV

By GUNNAR NORBERG

AT THE END of last week's article in this series, we said we would try to propose how local government in the general Carmel area could be made more effective.

We pointed out that there are usually two distinct types of local government—the single-purpose sort (of which the Carmel Sanitary District is an example) and the general-purpose type (of which the City of Carmel is the only one in the whole Carmel and Carmel Valley area).

While there is rarely any election contest for seats on the Carmel Sanitary District board, there are usually two or three or more candidates for each Carmel City Council position whenever council elections are announced. And why is this?

The voting public is usually aware of the existence of an elected city government, as represented by a mayor and city councilmen. Since such government is ordinarily multi-purpose—including such services as those of police and fire departments as well as those of public works and public administration—its actions affect more people more regularly than is the case with the single variety of service provided by a one-purpose agency such as the Carmel Sanitary District.

And that, of course, explains in the simplest terms why city elections attract more candidates than do the special district elections. (Even this statement does not fully clarify the difference, because sometimes there are extremely heated election contests in one kind of district election, that of schools—but our purpose here is not so much to split hairs over that, as it is to suggest how over-all local government may be improved).

It is people in the general-purpose type of government who determine—in the widest sense—just what sort of environment you, and your descendants, are to enjoy (or deplore). They are the ones who make all the local decisions in matters of planning and zoning, and they do this under a broad, state-granted use of the police power. And these planning and zoning decisions—from month to month and from year to year—are precisely the ones which can lead either to a brighter tomorrow or to a drearier one.

IN THE CARMEL AREA and in the Carmel River basin, there are just six elected leaders who have final say in local zoning and planning matters. Five are in the City of Carmel—Mayor Barney Laiolo and Councilmen Eben Whittlesey, Frank Falge, Bernard Anderson and Ken Brown—but they have specific authority only within that city itself.

The sixth such leader, Willard Branson, who lives in the Carmel Valley, is just one of the five members of the Monterey County Board of Supervisors whose other members come from other parts of the County. And Branson's district includes much more than the Carmel Valley, since voters in the cities of Monterey and Pacific Grove also participate in electing him, and their views in planning and zoning matters have, through the years, often been at variance with, for example, those of the City of Carmel and its adjacent unincorporated areas.

In the case of the City of Carmel, at least three of the five members of the City Council have to agree before there can be a binding decision on a particular planning concept or on a specific zoning law—and all of those City Council members have to reside within the city they govern.

In the case of the County Board of Supervisors which exercises city-type powers, but only outside incorporated cities, only one speaks specifically for the Carmel Valley and for the extensive unincorporated areas outside the City of Carmel, and he is Willard Branson.

Since each member of the County Board is elected from a specific geographic section, all the members of that Board frequently accede to the wish of each supervisor on legislative questions having singularly to do with his particular portion of the County, when there is no evident public controversy on those questions.

Sometimes, even when there is such evident controversy, they still provide him with majority support. At other times—and these are much more rare—they over-ride him.

In any event—with just one of five supervisors specifically concerned—the unincorporated Carmel area and the Carmel River watershed must usually depend upon the good will and the good judgment—in critical planning and zoning decisions—of just one supervisor, Willard Branson. Sometimes that is enough; sometimes, it isn't.

AS THIS IS WRITTEN, a rezoning decision which was made January 12 by the County Board of Supervisors, is in great dispute. That decision ordered the rezoning of a seven-and-a-half-acre parcel at the intersection of Val Verde Road and Carmel Valley Road, from a one-dwelling-per-acre classification to six-per-acre.

The decision was made by the County Board by a 3-to-2 vote, and it was made upon the initiative of Supervisor Branson whose motion was supported by that split vote. (The supervisors who voted "no" were Warren Church, who represents the northern portion of Monterey County, and Ellis Tavernatti, who represents the southern section).

It is at times like this that people in the Carmel area and in the Carmel River watershed begin to think about whether critical decisions importantly affecting their local environment should be made at the county courthouse over in Salinas, and whether it is wise to depend essentially upon just a single voting spokesman when such decisions have to be faced.

Again we have reached the end of this column's allotted space. Next week we hope to complete and conclude this discussion of the reciprocal relationship of local environment and local elections.

Wester the tentmaker.

Although Omar the tentmaker could make a nice tent, he was no help if you wanted to take it somewhere. For that you had to see your local camel dealer.

There are other tentmakers now, thank Allah.

Every tent* Volkswagen makes comes with an attachment that will take you and the tent anywhere: a Volkswagen.

Giving you about 23 miles for a gallon of gas, the VW Campmobile is a lot cheaper to feed than a camel. And a great deal more comfortable.

It has a full-length double bed, a child's bed, a child's hammock and a cot. As well as closets, curtains, and a reading lamp.

INFANT QUARTET

Three boys and a girl were born recently to families in this area. Joshua Dorian is the new son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hittleman of Carmel, born Jan. 26. Another boy, Cameron, was born Jan. 28 to Mr. and Mrs. Martin Forster of Big Sur. First child for Lt. Cdr. and Mrs. James Fitzgerald of Pebble Beach is son James Patrick. The little boy's father, a student at the Naval Postgraduate School, got that promotion just a week before the baby was born Jan. 29.

The only little girl in the week's quartet was Kristina Marie, born Feb. 2 to Mr. and Mrs. Joe Fernandez of Pebble [illegible]

NEW FOR HUGH

How about an administrative secretary for the City's Administrator? That's what newly hired Marlene Matteo is for Hugh Bayless down City Hall way.

Formerly a secretary at Robert Louis Stevenson School, Marlene has been a Carmel resident for a year and a half. Originally from Malaga, N.J., she came to this area after living first in Newport Beach. She loves the California seacoast, she said, especially this area.

SUNSET SEC'Y

Now the shaper-upper at Sunset Center has a helper-outer. Director Frank Riley now has secretary Marion Engstrom. She has lived in Carmel for three years.

Widow of the late George W. Engstrom, Marion worked previously for Yates, Andrews & Dyer, investment firm in Carmel, and for the Human Resources Organization at the Presidio of Monterey.

Mrs. Engstrom came here in 1967 from Carmichael. She lives in Carmel Valley with sons Paul, Mark and John. Her daughter is Mrs. Edwin Castillo.

COINCIDENCE

In one of those unlikely quirks, long-ago friends of the Gilbert Boyers—the Ken Goehrings who lived in Carmel for several years a decade ago—came upon the recent issue of the Pine Cone which featured a close-up of the Boyers.

Mr. Goehring, who Mrs. Boyer described as a "very good artist," and Mrs. Goehring, who worked here in Merle's Treasure Chest, promptly got off a letter to the Boyers, who had not heard from them in 10 years. They asked to be remembered to their Carmel friends.

Their address: Ken Goehring's Studio, 2418 West Colorado Avenue, Room 307, Colorado Springs, Colo. 80904.

HARJES RETIRES

Ed Harjes, security officer at Del Monte Forest's Carmel gate for the past six years, retired Jan. 29.

A native of Minnesota, he came to the Peninsula in 1949 and worked for 16 years in the Forestry division of Del Monte Properties, before transferring to the Security post.

The affable Ed and his wife Lily will remain residents of Pacific Grove, but will spend lesiure time in travel and his favorite pursuit, fishing.

AT BELOIT

Lissa A. Krenzien, daughter of Mrs. Mary Avis Krenzien of Carmel, is enrolled as a freshman for the winter term at Beloit College, in Beloit, Wis. She is a graduate of Carmel High School.

DeCAMP PUBLISHED

An article written by Col. C. Austin DeCamp and published in the Pine Cone Feb. 19, 1970, as a commemorative to George Washington, has been accepted for re-publication in the February issue of The Freeman, magazine of the Foundation for Economic Education.

The Freeman editors have changed the title to "Man and Miracle," originally published as "Miracle on Atlantic Shores." The Freeman, with a circulation of 100,000, goes to the nation's top economists and financiers.

DEAN'S LIST

Two students from Carmel were named to the fall quarter Dean's list at the University of California at Santa Barbara. They are Roger Lewis Ritter, son of Mrs. Genevieve C. Ritter; and Mary Ann Vasconcellos, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Vasconcellos. Mary Ann, a junior majoring in Combined Social Sciences, maintained a straight A average.

HOME MANAGEMENT

"A woman is the hub of the home," affirms Mrs. Catherine Harriman of Carmel, food consultant and instructor of the new YWCA class in Home Management and Budgeting.

"Never 'just a housewife' but the manager of the home, and a member of the most powerful consumer group in our nation, American women, in general, have not taken full advantage of their buying power. By learning to work together, we can learn economy in buying and cooking, careful budgeting, and over-all good managing of the family resources."

Mrs. Harriman's course—still open to new registrants—is given Wednesday mornings at 10 a.m. for five more sessions, in the Conference Room of Olympia Plaza, 1760 Fremont St., Seaside.

WILDLIFE FILM

"Scandinavian Saga," fourth in the five-part Audubon Wildlife Film Series, will be shown on Friday evening, at the Pacific Grove Junior High School Auditorium.

JIM WESTER

James Wester of Carmel, co-owner of Wester Volkswagen, has been elected to a two-year term on the Wolkswagen Dealer Advisory Council.

The eight-man council meets with the management of Reynold C. Johnson Co., the northern California, northern Nevada and Utah VW distributor, and Volkswagen of America, In., the importer, to discuss issues and make recommendations affecting VW products and operations.

Wester and his brother Don have operated the Monterey Peninsula's authorized Volkswagen dealership since 1960. Last year they opened the first dealership in the new Peninsula Auto Center in Seaside and alse started Wester Porsche Audi in Monterey.

Wester is a graduate of Northwestern University. He lives at 26055 Rotunda Ave. with his wife Sandy and their two children.

MPVS GIVES $$$

The Carmel Chapter of the American Field Service is the recipient of a gift of $200 from the Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services, according to a vote by the membership at the regular monthly meeting held recently in Monterey. The amount was requested by AFS to further their student exchange program.

The sum of $400 was given to the Carmel Unified School District for assistance iin the operation of the Drug Abuse Program at Carmel High School.

Student school board rep Doug McCall expresses views on drugs, ecology and more

When the Carmel school board met recently to decide whether or not to legitimatize student representation on the board, one of the major factors in their decision was a 17-year-old Carmel High School student named Doug McCall.

McCall, a senior who wears a modest, red goatee, has served as student representative on the board for the past semester. During that time he has figured vociferously -- and often practically -- in several district wrangles. His articulation of growing student awareness in environmental quality contributed to a cleaner campus, a reduction of horsepower in cars driven in the driver education program and the introduction of a more selective insecticide to the high school gardens.

On other fronts, he has championed John Frykman's drug [illegible] tacks. He calls Carmel, his hometown, a "lotus land" filled with desensitized individuals. High school activities such as drama and tennis are appreciated for their creative potential, at the expense of traditional, "rah-rah" group sports such as football.

McCall believes in the system despite its creaking operation.

"You have to learn to work through the proper channels," he says with characteristic, rapid intensity.

Even working within the system, McCall steps on toes.

District employees seemingly caught napping on environmental projects question McCall's originality.

"We had already decided to replace the fertilizer," said an official. "We just haven't used it yet because it's not the right time of year."

He groups his field of attention quite articulately, with thoroughness worthy of consumer crusader Ralph Nader.

McCall is kin to Nader, although he doubtless appears more like revolutionary Jerry Rubin to citizens who do not know him well, or even superficially.

" 'More power to students' is a statement that's going around school a lot these days," says McCall. "It's kind of strange, Students have a lot of power. They just have to learn to use it. Power: you just need to exercise that power and work through proper channels".

Carmel High School had a humanities class taught by Ralph Kahl, Peter Lyon, Linda Larsen and Nick Zanides, in which, at the beginning of the school year, students were encouraged to apply to community issues knowledge derived from technical studies.

Young geologists discovered two land faults running through school; chemists investigated the amount of chlorine dumped into the swimming pool and determined its drainage field; botanists studied the school garbage disposal system and the type of fertilizers used by the grounds department;

"Students have a lot of power... they just have to learn to use it"

labor arbitrators argued when school maintenance men, annoyed by suggestions, walked off the job.

It was discovered that one of the fertilizers used at the school contained high concentrations of DDT, Chlordane and Endrin, all highly toxic, non-biodegradable insecticides which tend to accumulate in the higher stages of food chains. Massive wildlife destruction is attributed to all three substances. More far-ranging dangers are suspected.

McCall, the single student on the five-man Carmel Unified School District Board, presented the findings.

"We are not feeding the multitudes of India," he said. "There is no reason to use these substances on campus. Kids learn a lot from what they see."

Thuricide was suggested as a replacement. It's non-synthetic, biodegradable and acts bacteriologically.

"It's one bug fighting another," says McCall.

The board liked the idea.

"They're pretty good people," says McCall. "They listen well and are receptive to ideas."

The board last Wednesday decided to extend student representation to September 1972. McCall wanted the position to be made permanent. He also requested the representative be given a vote.

"Doug has a lot of ideas," says one regular board meeting observer. "Representatives in the past have tended to be passive. Doug gives the board an idea of what students are really thinking."

The student representative is appointed by the high school's student body president with ratification by the student council. A new administration comes in this semester. McCall is seeking reappointment although a single term is customary.

"It took about two months to get to know the board members as individuals, to learn the best way to present an idea, who to present it to so as not to hurt its chances," he said. "The ball's just beginning to roll."

DOUG McCALL

One student-originated demand carried by McCall to the authorities involved the high school's driver education program. The students contended that the two eight-cylinder, V-8 Dodge Chargers in use were simply too large.

"They have so much power that you put them into 'drive' in the parking lot and don't have to touch the accelerator until you're on the highway," explains McCall. "They'll travel that far on the idle."

The authorities responded by securing a Dodge Dart Swinger, a six-cylinder, 235-cubic inch model.

"I'm still pushing to get Dodge's Colt four-cylinder stickshift," says McCall. "That's the ultimate. I'd like to see a Honda or Volkswagen. They're what most kids drive anyway. But the cars we get now are free. Anyway, it's got to be an American car. If you buy a foreign car you're a dirty Commie. It's kind of funny -- the Colt's made in Japan with a German engine."

McCall is a tall, good-looking kid with wavy, red hair. He appears dressed in shades of red except for faded Levis, pink shirt, rust vest and tan boots. Beads strung by a friend circle his neck and ring finger of his left hand. A belt buckle figured with a scorpion proclaims his astrological sign.

McCall is the type of youth who in increasing numbers are finding traditional organized teenage activities "passe". They don't appreciate the "football player-cheerleader-egghead-hoodlum" stratification that has prepared generations for adult roles.

Early in his high school career, McCall was deeply engaged in one of the "traditional" activities, the Sandpiper, the school newspaper.

"There were three people on the staff," he recalled. "We worked 40 hours straight to put out one edition. People looked at it and said, 'We don't care.' I resigned."

McCall notes the transition to personal activities.

"There's a movement into more creativity within yourself," he says. "People are into dance, pottery, art, not the "Scare tactics are only going to force kids...to try drugs" rah-rah activities. The Chameleon, for instance, the school literary magazine, was silk-screened by hand, by people who had been on the Sandpiper."

Another indication of change is the popularity of minor sports, indicated McCall.

"Nobody's going out for football anymore. Baseball's just as crappy. But look a swimming, track, tennis, golf -- undefeated. The tennis team has been champions for 11 years straight.

"The big sports aren't even getting spectators. The only people who show up for football games are friends and relatives of the players."

McCall is a bicycle racer, one of several at Carmel High who participate in American Bicycle League events, including the Mount Hamilton 27-mile uphill. The bicyclists have been able to receive physical education credit for riding.

"It's a spring sport just like baseball," said McCall. "The difference is you compete individually, not as a member of a nine-man crew."

McCall scoffed at the suggestion that the more introspective activities are the result of increased drug use.

"Scare tactics are only going to force kids subsconsciously to try drugs," he said. "The only harm from smoking marijuana is the danger of being thrown in a cold cell."

McCall relishes consideration of any topic under the sun. He sits back a moment, as if to decide what he thinks on a subject at this very moment in time, then rests it.

"I get into real heavy raps on drugs in all kinds of places -- like a lady in the doctor's office the other day. Or like Mr. Robert Oross of Carmel Valley. He wants Frykman to lose his job. He brings up this expert, Dr. Harden B. Jones of UCB, the guy who says heroin replaces the sex drive. Dr. Jones isn't even a medical doctor. I talk with Mr. Oross sometimes after the board meetings. We'll never change each other."

McCall stopped to pull a newspaper clipping from his wallet.

"I carry this around with me. People are always referring to it, as proof that marijuana is dangerous."

"Pot potential hazard," warned the article.

"You'll note though that they can't determine what the effects of marijuana are. They might as well emphasize that pot is potentially not hazardous."

McCall strongly defends John Frykman, Carmel's community counselor, who closely works with the drug problem.

"He's doing about the most good of anybody. What he's saying is, 'Here I am, I've got the facts.'

"There was some 'green' mescaline in town. Frykman sent some away for analysis and within four days we knew it was straight STP.

"I walked into his office one day with a couple pills in my hand, one benzedrine and another that was supposed to be straight mescaline. I could've been busted on the spot, The 'mescaline' turned out to be one-third acid, one-third strychnine and one-third 'undetermined substance'. I went out and told that to some people, some dealers. You can't just say, 'Don't do it,' But they have a little conscience. Also people now know what it is they're taking."

Carmel's social problems extend beyond drugs, according to McCall. He calls the town a "separate nation", a "lotus land", devoid of color and ethnic groups.

"We're desensitized," he said. "The kids at CHS are so desensitized they don't give a damn. I went to RLS (Robert Louis Stevenson School - a private school in Pebble Beach) for a while and it was sheer hell. All those rules and regulations. Carmel High has an open campus -- but there're so many people who abuse it.

"The kids who are trying to change the high school are the juniors and seniors. The freshmen and sophomores aren't really getting in to what's going on. Like tutorials -- I take seven classes plus a lot of others I keep up with by dropping in whenever I have a chance.

"The freshman come into high school and blow it for everyone. They throw food in the cafeteria. I refuse to eat in there any more. I've watched them throw rocks and garbage in the swimming pool. They're really immature for their age. I don't know what's happening to these kids or why."

McCall feels that sensivitity to one's world creates individuals who negate destruction and seek involvement.

"I don't mind getting up in the morning. I used to be that way. I spend half my time at school in the office rapping with various people."

McCall traces his increased activity to his junior year when, as a member of the Sandpiper staff, he found he could get out of class as often as he wanted.

"I could cut -- but I have a lot of creativity. So I became very free -- just didn't go through school and classes. I got to know these people."

McCall considered running for student body president last year but decided instead to try for the student representative post.

"I'll never regret being on the school board," he says. "It's been my education. This type of activity -- fulfilling activity -- is what I mean by sensitivity training. Pottery is not an orgasm.

"I've kind of done the whole awareness trip and found myself. I'm not afraid to say what I think. I'm confident. I believe what I say."

Petpourri

BY JUDITH A. EISNER

Two unmistakable signs—the golden glory of blossoming acacia and the almost imperceptable lengthening of the days—should have warned us that spring was coming. But the first egg laid by our little Bantam hen brought home the fact. It also made us realize that springtime is kittening time, and although the calendar says February, this is the month that kittens are conceived.

According to the S.P.C.A., April is the first month of their annual sad onslaught of unwanted kittens; and, since it takes about 63 days for kittens to "happen," now is the time those female felines are beginning to feel frisky.

The S.P.C.A. statistics show that all through spring and summer, they receive an average of 300 unwanted kittens a week. They can only record the number of kittens they take in, so the figures do not take into account the kittens abandoned by the roadside, brought to the County Pound, or otherwise "disposed of."

Lest you delude yourself into thinking that these adorable kittens grow up to frolic through life and produce more darling kittens, the facts prove differently. Most of them have to be destroyed because no one wants them; there are not enough homes for all the kittens that keep being born.

So, cat owners, it is up to you to prevent the need for this destruction. And the only way to do this is to stop your cats from having kittens.

Which means being responsible for your pet's actions, whether you own a male or female cat.

There are two things to be overcome: the first is that kittens are awfully cute, and not much bother, and one is tempted to have some just for the fun of it. The second problem is that female cats in heat are very hard to stand up to.

Female cats in heat usually take on the characteristics of crazed banshees. They wail and they moan and they sob; they crouch pathetcially at your feet pleading speechlessly for a mate. They attract crowds of wailing tom cats beneath your window. They drive you to the point where, good intentions be damned, you open the door and let them have their way.

Which is as Nature intended it to be, but which is no longer the way Man can permit it to be. Nature no longer has free rein to keep the cat population in check through her basic laws of survival; man, therefore, must take up the responsibility.

We do not generally advocate spaying or castrating without good cause. With cats, the cause exists in the very fact that cats who are not neutered are almost impossible to live with unless they are permitted to breed, and equally impossible to prevent from breeding.

Perhaps if cats were made differently and only came into season once a year we could put up with their yowling for the duration and also find good homes for their offspring.

But cats come into season several times a year—the average is probably four times—and produce several litters of several kittens a year; and in six months, the kittens come into season and the cycle becomes a geometric progression to an inundation of cats...

Tom cats, who contribute joyously and vociferously to the feline population explosion, create additional problems in that they fight, whether or not the females are in heat.

Besides coming home with torn ears, gouged eyes and scratched noses, which causes scarred and disfigured pets, toms create whopping veterinary bills.

Cat bites, because they are deep puncture wounds, frequently become infected and lead to abscesses which require professional treatment. And toms do not learn the hard way; they take their medicine (when you can catch them) and go back to their fighting with renewed vigor.

Neutering your tom will stop his fighting and his fathering. It will tend to make him a more contented and homeloving pet, and will probably make you a more contented and cat-loving master.

Spaying your female will do nothing more than make her incapable of reproduction. It will not make her grow fat and lazy, although it will probably make her a more affectionate pet.

Neutering cats requires surgery that must be performed by a veterinarian. Both operations are done under general anesthesia. Castrating the tom is a simpler, quicker operation and is less expensive. Usually, you can have your cat back the same day, and chances are he won't know anything is different.

Spaying a female is a more complicated operation, but most cats don't seem to experience any discomfort beyond that caused by a car trip to and from the vet's. Females require suturing after surgery and must be taken back to have the stitches removed.

We do not believe that anyone can truly love a pet cat and not neuter it. No one who loves his pet can permit the fighting and kittening to continue when it can be so easily checked.

No one who truly loves cats can permit his pet to reproduce when there are thousands of kittens born in this county each year who must be put to death by the time they are eight weeks old.

Wouldn't it be great if you could put all your weekly trash in a neat little bag like this?

YOU CAN with a new Whirlpool TRASH MASHER COMPACTOR

Takes little space, easy to use. Everytime you toss cans, bones, bottles or paper into the bag in the drawer, just close it, press a button and the trash is mashed to ¼ its size. Bag holds the equivalent of almost three 20-gallon cans of trash. Come in now and watch it work. *Tmk.

By ALICE WOLFE

THIS WEEK marks the opening of a fine new gallery on Lincoln between Seventh and Ocean. The new Lincoln Gallery is owned by Stan Perks of the Tudor Gallery and Barbara Ziegenbein, who is the Lincoln Gallery curator and manager.

A splendid facelifting job has been accomplished with complete redecorating and fine lighting equipment installed. The lighting is diffuse, but gives a clear daylight effect that does justice to their handsomely hung paintings.

Barbara is a sculptress of portrait busts. She is related to artists in every direction, and has a clear idea of what she hopes to achieve in her new domain. She says, "I want to have a gallery that will attract local people. I have lived here a long time. Most of the Monterey Peninsula residents feel that Carmel art galleries cater to tourists and their prices are prohibitive to the homefolks. I would like to have this gallery represent quality local artists at prices the residents will be happy to afford. I am hoping for their interest and support, and would like to forget about the tourists."

Peter Plamondon, who last month was featured at the Pacific Grove Art Association and was a first-prize winner at the Monterey County Fair Art Show is showing his fine impressionist paintings here. His large canvasses are sunny, colorful scenes that give the viewer a buoyant lift. A permanent gaze from a kitchen window into a profusely blooming garden, or a tranquil portrait of a woman sitting in a sunny room, are the optimistic impressions that he paints.

Don Paglia is another artist whose work is shown here. His paintings are compositions in design with great emotional impact. The grain and texture of aged wood predominates, as in a picture of the footing of an old building. Gray, deepgrained, rough wood is the subject, which is about to be overcome by a dense tangle of weeds and wild flowers, as nature claims its own. Another interesting picture is painted from the dark inside of an old barn. A bird can be seen soaring in the sky from a borken window pane.

Barbara's sister, Jean Fasnot, is a very exciting abstract impressionist showing her work at the Lincoln Gallery. Jean was an art teacher at Carmel High School for three years. She is presently taking a sabbatical in Teheran, Iran. Jean has done a whole series of flight paintings, depicting seagulls, vast sky, and turbulent blue ocean, and abstract studies of light and movement that are magical. Also Vi Dawson whose portraits reveal the emotional atmosphere and personality of the sitter.

EMILY HICKMAN, a lovely young Englishwoman, came to Carmel a year ago. Prompted by a strong European art education, she immediately opened the Matrix II Gallery, on Dolores, across from the post office.

Her gallery is distinguished by the individuality of the artists work shown there. In particular, the metal sculptures of Fishermans Wharf by well-known Monterey artist, Douglas Purdy.

Interviewed by the Pine Cone some time ago, Emily said, "I love what I'm doing. I feel so fortunate in representing such fine artists. I wouldn't want to be anywhere else in the world."

There was, indeed, true heart in her words, for on Jan. 27 Emily married Douglas Purdy in Las Vegas. The newlyweds are presently living in Monterey while a new house and studio is under construction in Carmel Valley.

ROSEMARY MINER'S Gallery Americana, which opened its portals a little more than a year ago, recently expanded to include a new third gallery. Besides the magnificent seascapes by Rosemary Miner, this gallery specializes in the vanishing American scene. Their paintings rekindle a nostalgic part of our heritage that is rapidly losing ground to the bulldozer.

This year, the additional space will permit them to give a monthly series of one-man shows. March 6 will be the opening exhibition of Ray Swanson's Navajo, Hopi and Zuni Indian paintings.

Swanson lived on an Arizona Indian reservation for many years, and has a deep empathy with the Indians and a vision of beauty in their pastoral way of life. "End of the Day" is a powerful canvas. On a vast horizon, an Indian woman, bright skirt trailing, is riding a pinto pony, herding the family sheep into the evening corral. Her lovely, dark-skinned children scamper after the strays. The terrain is flat, rough and rocky. Buttes and bluffs are in the limitless distance. Having seen this one painting by Ray Swanson, we are looking forward with impatient anticipation to see his show.

Presently showing in the new addition at the Gallery Americana are paintings by Nicholas Firfires of Santa Barbara. He was born on the Firfires Ranch, "Waunakee," in Santa Margarita near Santa Barbara. He began riding, breaking and training horses, and working with cattle at the age of ten. His knowledge of breeds of cattle, conformation of horses, cowboy personalities and types, saddles, tack and ranc... is authentic. He paints what is in his blood. These are wonderful paintings of beautiful western land, horses, cowboys, cattle, and pack animals en route, that will mesmerize you.

The music corner

BY IRVING W. GREENBERG, Ph.D.

IN THE SECOND of his piano recitals last Tuesday, Feb. 2, at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, Gilbert Boyer continued his unorthodox appraoch to the programming that he had started in his first recital. There were comparisons of various forms of music as previsouly, as well as profiles of Latin American composers.

The recital began with two sonatas of Scarlatti. Owing to the stiff action of the piano used, these did not come through as the graceful, light compositions that they were intended to be, but rather on the heavy, percussive side.

With the Mozart Sonata, K. 333, Boyer was able to subdue somewhat the piano response, so as to obtain more of what is normally associated with Mozart.

With the Prokofieff Sonata no. 3 (in one movement), Boyer achieved a real synthesis of tonal effects and coloration. It was beautifully performed, and the dynamics were very well observed. In the comparisons of the etudes of Chopin, Debussy and Rachmanioff, Boyer again demonstrated his affinity for the impressionistic style of musical writing, with the Debussy interpretation.

The composer profiles this time included works by the Brazilians, Villa-Lobos and Pinto. These were charming, exceedingly well-performed, and of great interest, as this type of music is so rarely heard here. Again, this kind of music is very close to Boyer, because of his involvement with the people of Latin America and their expressive folk idiom. Of the two, the Pinto work showed off to a better advantage, possibly because of Boyer's meeting with Pinto, and also because of the gay, lilting tones.

The comparison of the two "Ondines" of Debussy and Ravel again gave Mr. Boyer the opportunity to display his virtuosity in this kind of musical expression. The Debussy was very well performed, but the Ravel really came forth in all its dazzling, shimmering kaleidoscope of tonal palette.

Before each section of the music, Boyer gave a short, pertinent comment about the composers and the music to be performed.

The fourth concert in this series will take place at the same place at 8 p.m. on Tuesday next, Feb. 16.

THE SAN FRANCISCO SYMPHONY last week under guest conductor Niklaus Wyss, with guest soloist Zino Francescatti gave a reading of the Brahms Violin Concerto that was restrained, without the fervor and life associated with this great work. Francescatti, being the great violinist that he is, had beautiful purity of tone and intonation, with a lyrical interpretation, but he could not overcome the apathetic and pedestrian playing of the orchestra.

The other important work, the Petrouchka of Stravinsky, showed the orchestra to better advantage, but it still was an uninspired performance.

The San Francisco Symphony is a good orchestra, Francescatti is a great artist, so the fault must be attributed to the routine conducting by Mr. Wyss.

THE BEYER STRING TRIO (Helen Beyer, violin; Erwin Gordon, viola; and Elaine Beyer, cello), well-known to Carmel audiences, gave a beautiful and lyrical chamber music recital Saturday at Carmel Valley Manor. The program included the Haydn String Trio, Op. 53-No. 1 in G; the Beethoven Piano Quartet, Op. 16 in E flat major, in which they were joined by Wade Parks, Carmel pianist; and the Dohnanyi Serenade for String Trio, Op. 10 in C major.

The overflow audience gave the recitalists a great welcome.

IN PRESENTING pianist Anthony Di Bonaventura last Monday in Pacific Grove, the Monterey Peninsula Concert Association brought us an artist of grace, charm, and marvellous control at the paino.

His playing was subdued and restrained with subtle reminiscences of the playing of the great romantic masters such as Hoffman, Godowski and Paderewski.

In the first work, the Bach piano transcription of one of Vivaldi's violin concerti, in all of its three beautiful movements, the pianist displayed a correct sense of rubato with very little pedal effects. The pianissimi, especially in the slow second movement, were a joy to hear, while the last movement sounded exquisite without being in any way percussive.

The Beethoven Sonata in C minor, Op. 13 ("Pathetique") was also very beautifully projected, but here the tendency to restraint on the part of the pianist did not bring forth the essential virility of the composer. Especially muted was the second adagio movement. With his wonderful technical equipment, he could have given a much more dynamic interpretation.

The Barcarolle in F sharp minor, Op. 60, one of Chopin's more impetuous works, showed Di Bonaventura to be a master of contrasting tonalities. He imparted a glow of romantic fervor to a work that has as its basis an intensity of harmonic imagination and skill.

The Kodaly Piano Pieces from Opus 11 brought the soloist into the realm of modern music at the turn of the century. These interpretations were in the genre of the impressionistic style of the French composers, such as Debussy and Ravel, and were evocative of moods of man and nature. These were indeed a welcome addition to the program, as this type of music is seldom heard now.

The three transcriptions by Rachmaninoff of the Brook by Schubert, the Flight of the Bumblebee by Rimsky-Korsakov and the Liebesfreud by Kreisler were beautifully enunciated and showed the artist in a nostalgic mood for the music of his contemporaries.

THE CARMEL MUSIC SOCIETY will bring Itzak Perlman, internationally-famous Israeli violinist to Sunset Center next Thursday. His background includes many awards, the Leventritt among them. He has been guest soloist with practically all the orchestras in Europe and the United States. Many have compared his violinistic technique and interpretation to that of Jascha Heifetz.

Lavishly praised 'Man of La Mancha' coming to Carmel

The Community Theatre of the Monterey Peninsula has been awarded production rights for the Monterey Bay area premiere of "Man of La Mancha", one of the greatest hits of the Broadway stage. Now in its sixth year in New York, where it won all the major theatre awards for the 1965 season, it was named as the best musical by the New York Drama Critics' Circle, The Outer Circle, The Variety Poll and Saturday Review.

Five "Tony" awards fell to participants in the production, and one each to the composer, the lyricist, the director, the designer and Richard Kiley, who played the leading role.

Hailed by the New York Daily News critic as "the finest and most original work in our musical theatre", it ranks with "Fiddler on the Roof", "Hello, Dolly" and "My Fair Lady" as one of the thrilling superattractions of the modern musical theatre. Its song hits, "Dulcinea" and "The Impossible Dream" have become musical classics.

The Community Theatre production of "Man of La Mancha" will feature a cast of 19 talented actors and singers, as well as a seven piece orchestra, including piano, guitars, flute, piccolo and percussion. Specially designed 15th Century costumes, complete with armor, unusual lighting effects and unique circle staging promise to make "La Mancha" the most ambitious undertaking in Community Theatre history.

"Man of La Mancha" by Dale Wasserman, music by Mitch Leigh and lyrics by Joe Darion, will begin its 20 performance engagement at the Circle Theatre, Casanova between 8th and 9th, Carmel on Friday, Febr. 19 at 8:30 p.m., to be seen on successive Fridays and Saturdays at 8:30 p.m., Sundays at 7:30 p.m. with special Thursday evening performances March 4, 11 and 25 at 8:30. Reservations may be made by calling 624-2669. Admission for adults is $3.00; $1.75 for students or enlisted military personnel with identification. Del Monte Lodge chef enters SF 'Crab Cooking Olympics'

They'll soon be dueling over the Dungeness in San Francisco.

The call has gone out to crack culinarians from coast to coast to come compete in the third annual Crab Cooking Olympics at Fisherman's Wharf on May 17.

Pebble Beach's master chef Marc Vedrines of Del Monte Lodge has accepted the challenge and served notice that he will be in the front lines when North America's foremost creators of haute cuisine clash over the crab pots.

The cooks will compete in five categories: appetizers, soup or chowder, salad, entree (casserole) and chef's creation, with awards for each.

Vedrines will be vying for the Master Chef de Cuisine Award and the coveted perpetual trophy won last year by Chef Robert Greault of the Jockey Club of Washington, D.C.

Time for YOU at Sunset Center

BY FRANK RILEY

HAVE YOU EVER FELT that there was NO time for you at Sunset Center? Or perhaps have you neglected to inquire if there might be a time for you? We suspect that there may be those who will answer yes to either one or the other of these questions. And we think that since this is the case, that we both better get some lines of communication working. Not that we think that everything that happens at Sunset will be interesting to everyone.

We do think, though, that our schedule should include such a variety that everyone can at some time find something that really is his "dish of tea". As this column progresses from week to week, we plan to tell you what is happening or what is about to happen, keeping the community well informed and alerted in time to make it possible to take advantage of the various offerings.

At the same time, we will be truly attentive to all suggestions and ideas and requests for programs, activities and opportunities to fulfill interests which you feel have been neglected in our planning.

Sunset is here to serve the community - if we are failing you, please let us know. There IS a time for YOU at Sunset.

xxx

THIS WEEK we experience the first of the newly established long week-ends, and as a result we present what is now stylish to call a low profile. Our activities are in a large measure behind the scenes. Having solved some stage [illegible] in an attack on improving some sound projection from the stage. Working at rehearsal time this week, we expect to effect notable improvement before the next concert on Feb. 22 (the Caesar Frank symphony will be featured).

xxx

During the same period, our maintenance staff will be following the old army dictum - "If you can't pick it up - paint it!" Some of you who have been shaking your heads at some rather sorry examples of interior decor, will soon be able to move on to new projects!

xxx

Not everything is "low profile", however. The entire community should be interested in the formal opening of the new Sunset Gym Program. Sponsored by our Police Department and headed up by Captain Ellis, the program invited interested persons to a preview session last night. To see the improvements in the gym itself, to see the extensive equipment that has been moved in, to have all of your questions answered, and to meet the supervisor of the activities, Jess Morales, plan to be present at the opening on Saturday.

xxx

This week we met Jack Aranson, the actor who appears here on the 19th and 20th in his production of Moby Dick. As all actors do, he came preceded by many ecstatic press reviews of his work in both America and Europe. After meeting him, however, it became evident that the reviews were undoubtedly justified.

His dymanic personality, his Irish humor, and his evident knowledge of his craft are completely captivating. His impact is trenendous. So we feel in all sincerity that we can say, "Don't miss Jack Aranson in Moby Dick".

Those of you who sometimes tell us that you do not like to go to late night performances, please note that in addition to the two evening shows, he will be presenting a matinee performance on Saturday.

And there will be time for those who favor music, too, for on the 18th the Carmel Music Society will be presenting the Israeli violinist, Itzhak Perlman in concert.

Time for you at Sunset? We hope so.

EDIE DONAHOE and Jay Roudebush in a dramatic scene in the comedy "The Tunnel of Love," which opened last weekend at the Studio Theatre in Carmel.

'Tunnel of Love' a very lively comedy

Let it first be said that "The Tunnel of Love", which opened last weekend at the Studio Theatre, has nothing at all to do with a Disneyland-type lark in the dark.

Rather it's a pretty sophisticated comedy about life in the suburbs (in this case, Westport, Conn.) and in particular the tunnel-full of trouble which befell one suburbanite when he slipped from grace - once.

Whether or not it's a parody on the sexual habits of American suburbanites (or even urbanites as well as ruralites) as the playbill suggests, may be open to question. Things have changed a lot, especially since the play made its debut on Broadway back in 1957.

Regardless of all this, one thing is for certain. The Carmel version of the play put together by Joseph Fields and Peter De Vries is given a rousing good treatment by Director Bill Asp.

The action is very well sustained, the clever dialog is fully enhanced, and the subtle nuances are adroitly projected.

Jay Roudebush makes his local stage debut as Augie Poole, a struggling young artist whose childless marriage sets the stage for all the action. His is an excellent characterization.

His wife, Carrie Poole, is played by Edie Donahoe who is fast becoming one of the favorites on the Studio stage.

She is the understanding and sympathetic wife who wants to solve their marital dilemma by adopting a child.

It is when the adoption agency investigator, played impressively by Kit Hope, enters the scene that Augie's life falls apart.

Goaded by his roue friend, Dick Pepper, played by David Bradshaw (who also makes a splendid debut on a local stage), to have an affair, he does just that.

And when it turns out that he is about to adopt his own son, his predicament appears to be beyond any possible solution, especially when his wife has her worst fears confirmed.

But in a sentimental denouement, the dilemma is resolved.

Other members of the cast who make the same generally splendid contribution to the play are Ginnie Baker as Alice Pepper, the ever-pregnant wife of the philandering Dick, and Betty Hughes as Miss McCracken, the adoption agency representative.

There are plenty of hilarious moments in this spicy comedy. It is highly recommended for all who want and enjoy an evening of largely ribald entertainment. There's no moralizing, and it's the kind of slice of life comedy that may not be ennobling or enriching, but as entertainment its cup runneth over.

It'll play the Studio weekends for the next five weeks. All of Bill Asp's plays are professionally staged, and this alone makes them worth seeing. GMD

Marina incorporation would cost Carmel $2,000 year

The proposed incorporation of Marina threatens Carmel with the loss of approximately $2,000 in gas tax money, the city council learned last week.

The council instructed City Administrator Hugh Bayless to draft a letter to express disapproval of the loss and to seek an alternative.

Marina proposes to incorporate a section of Fort Ord for which the city will not provide services already provided by the military reservation.

However, the increased population will be used to calculate Marina's share of gas tax money at the expense of other cities in the area, Bayless stated.

County cities share the money according to their proportion of the county's population.

The alternative suggested by the council is that Marina be allowed to incorporate without including the Fort Ord area, with the understanding that the boundaries could be extended subsequently, on the condition the city agree to a revised gas tax distribution formula.

Bayless said his letter, which will be sent to the Local Agency Formation Commission at county offices in Salinas, will be modeled on one written to the commission by Salinas City Manager Thomas G. Dunne.

Dunne's letter follows:

xxx

It is proposed that the Marina area be incorporated as a new city in Monterey County. Proposed boundaries for this new community presently before the Local Agency Formation Commission are a matter of interest to the City of Salinas.

At the outset we wish to make it clear the City of Salinas has no objection to the incorporation of the City of Marina. On the contrary, we support the view that any urban area in need of municipal services should take steps to incorporate as the citizens of the Marina area are presently doing. The aspect of the proposal of particular concern to Salinas is inclusion within the proposed new city of a portion of the area and population within the boundaries of the Fort Ord military post. The basis for our concern is that such populated area will not receive full range of municipal services from the new city inasmuch as they are located on a military reservation which provides most municipal type services. While at the same time, this population will, when used in computing distribution of gas tax funds to cities in Monterey County, reduce revenue to subject cities at the benefit of the new City of Marina without that city assuming responsibility for providing services to the military reservation for which gas tax funds are made available. Based on a proposed population of 28,000 for the new city, 19,000 of which is within the Fort Ord area, loss to the City of Salinas could be as high as $16,000 a year.

The same question arose in 1968 when the City of Seaside proposed annexation of a portion of Fort Ord along its western boundary to that community. With the assistance of the Local Agency Formation Commission and full cooperation of Seaside, cities in Monterey County agreed that the Fort Ord population included in the Seaside annexation would not figure in the distribution of certain local gas tax funds. This particular arrangement is specifically provided for by State law.

In the case of the Marina proposal there is no established government with which we could make such an agreement. Recognizing the basic unfairness and inequity to other cities in Monterey County that would be caused by inclusion of a portion of the Fort Ord populated area in the Marina incorporation proposal and resulting loss of revenue to these other cities, we respectfully suggest that the Fort Ord area be initially eliminated from the Marina area incorporation proposal with the understanding that subsequent to incorporation of the City of Marina, the Local Agency Formation Commission would approve expansion of their boundaries to include the Fort Ord area conditioned upon the new Marina city government agreeing with other cities in Monterey County to revision in the gas tax distribution formula that would assure the other cities in the County equal revenue to that which they now receive.

Lacking Local Agency Formation Commission approval of this alternate plan, the City of Salinas expresses its opposition to the Marina area incorporation proposal in its present form.

It would also seem proper that before any portion of Fort Ord be included in either an incorporation or an annexation to any city that the consent of the military and Federal Government be obtained before confirmation of such boundaries to include such area.

The Carmel Pine Cone

SECTION II

Remember When?

50 YEARS AGO:

From the Pine Cone, Feb. 10, 1921:

The second offering of the Carmel players, whose production of little dramas at Arts and Crafts Hall on Friday evening, January 28, was so well received, has been scheduled for Friday evening, February 18, at the same hall and at the same hour — 8:30 prompt.

Four one-act plays are in rehearsal, a fantasy, a tragedy, a comedy and a farce, and several new actors and actresses will be seen in the casts. Of the Carmel favorites Clara B. Liedig, [illegible], Marion Boke, William T. Kibbler and others who have been seen and applauded often, will be in various of the plays.

Mrs. Ida Mansfield Wilson, noted lecturer and writer on metaphysical subjects, has purchased a residence on Dolores street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues, and will remain indefinitely in Carmel.

The Van Riper stone house, down on "The Point," being put up by contractor L.E. Gottfried, is nearing completion. It is a structure artistic in design and substantial as well. Such work as this is a credit not only to the owner but also to the builder.

Several of the recent numbers of the moving picture magazines carry articles and pictures of the filming of "Foolish Wives" at Carmel Point. Von Stroheim gets credit not only for producing a fine picture, but for providing in December the favorable weather for picture taking.

Henry Cowell, talented young pianist and frequent visitor to Carmel, is here again for a brief stay.

25 YEARS AGO:

From the Pine Cone, Feb. 8, 1946:

"It is a sad commentary on the City of Carmel that it should take this time to terminate John Roscelli's contract when the son is about to land from over-seas service, thinking that the business is awaiting him," Gordon Campbell said Wednesday night in his appeal to the City Council to rescind its action taken last month in cancelling the Roscelli garbage contract.

Sheet Metal Workers' Union Local No. 304 voted to call the International's West Coast representative at their next meeting and go to bat for Don Berry.

Berry is the twenty-two year old ex-Marine Staff Sergeant who was refused membership in the union as "overage" when he went to work for Cree Wilder here upon his discharge from the service.

As the Pine Cone went to press yesterday afternoon, indications were that Noel Van Bibber would be elected president of the Carmel Business Association at its dinner meeting at the Chop House Thursday night -- if he chose to run.

10 YEARS AGO:

From the Pine Cone, Feb. 9, 1961:

Carmel Mayor Frank Putman sounded a note of alarm at last night's city council meeting when he spoke in criticism of the continuing, overt and flagrant violation of the city's residential zoning laws by rooming house and guest house operators.

Clayton Neill, Jr., son of Carmel City Engineer Clayton B. Neill and Mrs. Neill, announced yesterday that he would be a candidate for one of the two vacancies on the Carmel Unified School District Board of Trustees.

Nine senior girls received Carmel High School's highest scholastic award, life membership in the California Scholastic Federation, when pins were presented to Sally Campbell, Barbara Cooke, Gudny Eide, Cornelia Lieb, Mary Martin, Ellen Merrifield, Sharon Predmore, Jeanie Roeder and Jane Tetley.

Coach Dan Yurkovich's Carmel High varsity hoop squad kept within hailing distance of first place in the CCAL B-division basketball chase last Friday night as it hung a 50-38 decision on the hard-trying Gonzales High quintet.

Tanous, Lagorio, Gonzales win top museum prizes

Joseph Tanous of Carmel was awarded Best of Show in Sculpture and First Prize in Painting in the Seventh Annual Monterey Painting Competition at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art. He will share a "one-man" show in the fall with Irene Lagorio of Carmel who was judged Best of Show in Painting.

William Elsner, curator of the California Palace of the Legion of Honor in San Francisco, judged the show and awarded first and second prizes in sculpture ($200 and $175 cash) to Virginia Gonzales of Carmel and to Doyle Moses of Monterey.

Second prize in painting ($175 cash) was awarded to Justine Weber of Pacific Grove. The Museum's $150 purchase award for a watercolor for the permanent collection went to Vern Yadon of Pacific Grove.

The prize-winning entires, together with the works of other Peninsula artists who were accepted will be seen at the Museum until the end of February.

Tanous, who won his awards for Best of Show in Sculpture ("Windy Monday"), and first prize in painting ("Newton's Orange) lives in Carmel with his wife and three children. He teaches drawing and painting at the Carmel Adult School and design at Monterey Peninsula College Evening School.

He is presently on leave from the American University of Beirut, Lebanon, where he had been serving as assistant professor of fine arts during the past three years. He previously was instructor in fine arts at the University of California, Davis, where he had been awarded an M.A. in painting and sculpture.

His works are seen locally at Zantman's Gallery, Carmel.

Irene Lagorio, whose painting, "Tiger, Tiger, Burning Bright," was awarded Best of Show, has exhibited internationally, from California to New York to Italy and Turkey. She was born in Oakland and obtained her AB and M.A. from the University of California in Berkeley; she did graduate work at Columbia University in New York. She is a fellow in the International Institute of Arts and Letters; director of the Art Association Foundation, and a member of the Board of Directors of the Carmel Art Association.

She has served as curator of the California Palace of the Legion of Honor in San Francisco; director of the Achenbach Foundation for Graphic Arts, San Francisco, and has been guest lecturer at the University of California Extension, Berkeley and College of the Holy Names in Oakland.

She has been included in group shows at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Whitney Museum of American Art, the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, the Smithsonian Institute and the Brooklyn Museum.

She is the author of numerous articles on art and artists.

Irene Lagorio is listed in Who's Who in American Women; Who's Who in American Art; International Directory of the Arts; and the Dictionary of International Biography.

In California, her works are handled by the Carmel Art Association of Carmel; Mrs. C. Mark Thomas, Monterey; Albert Kramer of Los Angeles, and Gump's of San Francisco.

Mrs. Gonzales won first prize in sculpture for "Belated Birthday." She is the wife of the well-known artist, Alex Gonzales whose entry "Meadow" is also included in the show.

Born in Oakland, she has lived on the Peninsula since 1960 and now resides in Carmel. She received a B.A. from the California College of Arts and Crafts, Oakland, and her works have been included in two invitationals.

At present, one of her sculptures is on tour with an exhibit called "Toys of the Artist." Her works are seen locally at the Mariposa Gallery, San Juan Bautista, and with "The Group," 591 Lighthouse, Pacific Grove... Sponsors contributing to the cash awards included: Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bucquet, Carmel; Mr. and Mrs. John Holman, Carmel; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Huntington II, Pebble Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Robert McMahan, Pebble Beach; Wells Fargo Bank, Carmel; Thrift Food Store, Carmel; and Mediterranean Market, Carmel.

The museum, located acorss from Colton Hall, is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday; from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. It is closed on Mondays and holidays.

Mrs. Brinton to teach cooking classes for 'Y'

The YWCA of the Monterey Peninsula announces that Mrs. Richard Brinton will conduct classes in "Imaginative Cookery" Tuesday evenings, 7:30 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. at the New Monterey Neighborhood Center on Lighthouse and Dickman Aves., Monterey.

"Imaginative Cookery" is a new class designed to "inspire the creative talent and cooking abilities within the individual," says Mrs. Brinton. Women of all ages are invited to attend.

There is a $2 fee plus $5 membership fee for those not already members of YWCA.

Mrs. Brinton, a resident of Carmel, is an experienced homemaking teacher who is contributing her time and energies. She has three small children and is active in many organizations on the Peninsula. Mrs. Brinton says, "there should be a class where all women may improve their cooking skills, thus gaining satisfaction from cooking as a creative art. Simplicity is the secret for today's busy housewife."

MRS. BRINTON

The six-week class will consist of demonstrations on preparation of pies, meat dishes, yeast cookery, cakes and frostings, Baked Alaska and "many other interesting ideas."

UNIV. FOR MAN

More than 40 study groups, discussion groups, seminars and workshops to be offered by the University for Man during its spring semester are described in a UFM brochure now being distributed on the Monterey Peninsula College campus, all Peninsula public libraries and most local bookstores.

RICHARD FERRILL

Ferrill in N. Ireland studying nationalism

Richard Ferrill, a Carmel resident and student at the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies, arrived in Belfast, Northern Ireland, this week to begin a five-month comparative study of "Nationalism" in the 1970-71 InterFuture program. After conducting his research there, he will fly to Ghana to complete his study project.

Richard, 30, is the son of Mrs. Mary A. Ferrill, 3333 Sycamore Pl. A joint faculty-student committee chose him to participate in this highly selective program; his school is providing academic and financial support. On his return, Ferrill will share his experiences with the Monterey counity in an accredited seminar on "Nationalism".

InterFuture is a program which introduces U.S. and foreign college students to intercultural studies of man's future.

Founded in 1969 and based in Princeton, InterFuture investigates global social problems with research teams of highly select U.S. undergraduates, aided by advisors and students in the U.S., Europe, and developing nations.

Ferrill has studied Russian, Romanian, Italian and Swahili, served as translator in the U.S. Army and lists painting and creative writing among his hobbies.

In his study project, titled "The Nationalizing of Primary Schoolchildren," he is examining how the state, via the primary school, conditions the attitudes of children toward "the nation".

What criteria and methodology are prescribed by law, to which teachers must adhere?

How in reality do teachers communicate national symbols and values?

In Northern Ireland and Ghana, he plans to interview – as he has in the U.S. – government officials who deal with primary education; spokesmen of private interest groups concerned with setting educational policy; and primary school administrators, teachers, and children.

ARMY NEEDS SEAMEN

Local Army recruiter Sgt. Jose Garcia says the Army needs seamen, marine engineers and harbor craft operators and repairmen. He is accepting applications from volunteers to go to Army school to learn marine hull repair, seamanship, amphibious operations and engineering.

Sgt. Garcia can be reached at his recruiting station at 431 Webster St., Monterey, phone 372-4742.

BLACK HISTORY WEEK

Black History Week is being celebrated now through Monday at Monterey Peninsula College with a series of public events coordinated by James Taylor, head of MPC's ethnic studies division.

A film on "the black man's contributions and history in America" will be shown tomorrow at noon in library lecture hall on campus. The public is invited without charge.

Tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. the Peninsula Chapter of Women's International League for Peace and Freedom will present a film on the U.S. court system and "the Soledad Brothers" in MPC Lecture-Forum 103.

Culminating the week's activities will be the appearance of the famed Count Basie and his orchestra on Monday at 8 p.m. in the gymnasium.

Our Churches

Presbyterian

The First Presbyterian Church of Carmel invites participation in a church-sponsored study series on "COCU"—the Church of Christ Uniting—Sunday at El Estero Presbyterian Church.

The church's the Rev. Keith Jackson, assistant minister in charge of Christian Education, will join in a panel discussion with the Revs. Joseph R. Allen, pastor, Hays Christian Methodist Episcopal Church; James W. Brock, rector, St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church; Wm. R. Hett, pastor, Church of the Oaks (United Church of Christ); Herbert Neale, pastor, Church of the Wayfarer (United Methodist) and Ed Weaklend, pastor, Christian Church of Pacific Grove (Disciples of Christ).

The panel will be moderated by Mrs. Arthur Hayler, chairman of the Ecumenical Mission and Relations Committee of the Synod of the Golden Gate.

Christian Science

Today's need of prayer which covers every human need will be emphasized Sunday at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Carmel.

Each section in the lesson-sermon on "Soul" begins with a verse from the Lord's Prayer.

Readings from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy include the following:

"Our Master taught his disciples one brief prayer, which we name after him the Lord's Prayer. Our Master said, 'After this manner therefore pray ye,' and then he gave that prayer which covers all human needs."

"You're Safe Wherever You Are!" is the title of Sunday's program in the new Christian Science radio series, "The Truth that Heals." Experiences involving protection in times of great danger will be related on this broadcast which may be heard over radio station KRML at 7:45 a.m. and over station KDON at 8:45 a.m.

Carmel Mission

Father George left a message last week to call concerning a human interest story.

He answered the phone and asked the caller to hold on a minute.

"The phenomenon's not observable at this moment," he said after he returned.

"For a long time now, at least since last autumn, a brown retriever leaves the house across the road and lays down on the planter strip." (He referred to the divider on Rio Road in front of the mission.) "She just sits under an olive tree looking at that little white house.

"I guess she's waiting for the master of the house to come home. We don't see her on Saturdays.

"Carmel has a lot of dog lovers. Maybe they have other explanations."

St. Philips

"Be a Winning Christian" is the sermon theme Sunday.

Following the service during the church school hour, the Rev. George W. Schardt will conduct an "inquirer class" for the benefit of friends who are non-Lutherans.

There will be a regular monthly meeting of the church council next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the church.

Community

The youth sermonette Sunday is "Encouragers."

The sermon is "Making the Most of It."

Wayfarer

A joint Circle Dessert Meeting will be held today in Fellowship Hall at 12:30 p.m.

The Wayfarer Guild meets for potluck dinner Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. in Room 5.

Dr. Faith Thomas, who has made five trips to Africa, will tell of her trips with the help of colored slides at the Feb. 15 meeting of the Couples Club.

The meeting begins with a period of fellowship at 6:30 p.m. and continues with a buffet dinner at 7 p.m.

Hosts are the Dan Danelz, the Harold Monaghans and the Ed Roberts.

"The Sanctuary," a daily devotional booklet for Lent, will be available to church members without cost, as in the past.

The booklets will be distributed through church organizations and will also be available at the guest registry inside the front door of the sanctuary.

Church school children will receive Lenten folders in their classes Feb. 28, the first Sunday in Lent.

The folders will also be available for the congregation.

Persons interested in forming Bible studies and prayer groups are invited to attend an organizational meeting in the Garden Room Feb. 16 at 7:30 p.m.

John C. Brauer is in charge.

Obituaries

WHITE

One of Monterey County's leaders in education died Monday evening at Community Hospital after a long illness. Dr. Verna White, who served as Director of Education for Monterey County Schools from 1956 to 1962, was known as a foremost expert in evaluation and test development.

A native of Acushnet, Mass., she graduated from Wheaton College and Michigan University and received her doctorate from the University of Chicago. Dr. White taught for more than 15 years in elementary and secondary schools, served as a Research Assistant in the United States Armed Forces Institute, and was on the professional staff of Syracuse University for 11 years.

After leaving the Monterey County Schools office, she joined CTB McGraw-Hill (formerly California Test Bureau), and was primarily responsible for the development of that company's first new testing instrument under the McGraw-Hill label—the Comprehensive Tests of Basic Skills. This test, which has been adopted by the State of California and other cities and states throughout the nation, has been called one of the most unique and innovative measurement tools to be created. She is listed in Leaders in Education.

Survivors include her mother, Mrs. Annie White of Acushnet, Mass., a brother, Raymond, of Acushnet, Mass., two sisters, Mrs. Burt Francis of Grosse Point Woods, Mich., and Mrs. Ralph Hastings of Baltimore, Md., eight nieces and nephews, and twenty-nine grandnieces and nephews.

She lived on Rio Vista Drive in Carmel.

WADDELL

Mrs. Frances Barbara Waddell, a Peninsula resident for the past 11 years, died Friday in her Carmel home after a period of failing health. She was 47 years old.

Mrs. Waddell was born in San Diego.

She was a member of the Sierra Club and secretary to the late psychiatrist, Eric Berne.

Mrs. Waddell is survived by a son, Peter G. Waddell, and a daughter, Robin Waddell, both of San Francisco; her mother, Mrs. A.D. Lomotte of San Diego; and a sister, Mrs. Marjorie Lamotte Datri of Yuma, Ariz.

Prayers for the departed were recited Monday at the Blessed Sacrament Chapel in Carmel Mission Basilica. Requiem mass was said Tuesday at the chapel with burial following in San Carlos Cemetery, Monterey.

Mission Mortuary handled arrangements.

DIGGS

Vernal Albert Diggs, a resident of Pebble Beach for the past nine years, died recently in a local hospital at the age of 80.

Born in Fort Recovery, Ohio, Mr. Diggs was an engineer for the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. for 42 years. After his retirement he went to France as a communications specialist for an international company.

He was a captain in the Army Signal Corps during World War I.

He was a graduate of Purdue University and a member of Tau Beta Pi, The Group, Carmel Chapter of High 12, Winamac (Ind.) Lodge 262 F&AM, Carmel Presbyterian Church, Scottish Rite Consistory of Monterey, Monterey Peninsula Country Club, the International Electrical and Electronic Engineers, the Military Order of World Wars, Rainbow Division of Veterans, Sons of the American Revolution, Telephone Pioneers of America and the Monterey History and Art Association.

Mr. Diggs leaves his widow, Julia Nelson Diggs, of Pebble Beach; daughters Mrs. Joseph Fields of Los Gatos and Mrs. George Stafford of Henderson, Nev.; a brother, Dudley, of Sun City, Ariz.; and eight grandchildren.

Memorial services were held at Carmel Presbyterian Church with Dr. George Hunter Hall officiating. Private inurnment was planned in West Creek cemetery in Lowell, Ind.

COOK

Mrs. Betty Cook of Pebble Beach died recently in a local hospital after a period of failing health. She was 49 years old.

Mrs. Cook was born March 4, 1921 in Los Angeles. She had been a Peninsula resident since July 1969 and had worked as a real estate broker for Monterey Peninsula Associates.

She leaves her husband, John, of 4032 Mora Lane, Pebble Beach; five sons, John and Stephen Joyce of Los Angeles; Paul Joyce serving with the U.S. Navy and Gary Joyce and David Cook, both of Pebble Beach; mother, Mrs. Louise Rahe of Santa Monica; two sisters, Mrs. Mary Sork of Newport Beach and Mrs. Frances Jones of Los Angeles; a brother, George Rahe of Carmel; and a grandson, Eric Joyce of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Cook was buried at El Carmelo Cemetery in Pacific Grove.

GRIER

J.B. Moorhead Grier Jr., a Peninsula resident since 1966 and stepfather of Norman Gotch of Carmel, died last Wednesday in a local hospital following a prolonged illness. He was 91 years old.

Mr. Grier, born in Philadelphia on Sept. 3, 1879, was an attorney for the Pennsylvania Railroad. He moved to Southern California after his retirement.

Memorial services were held Saturday at Farlinger Funeral Home. Inurnment was planned in West Chester, Pa.

ZEREGA

Bertha Zerega passed away last Thursday in her home on Carmel Mesa.

She was a resident of Carmel 37 years moving here from her home in Plainfield, N.J.

Miss Zerega was a graduate of Wellesley College in 1901 and a member of the local Wellesley Club.

She is survived by a nephew, John W. Zerega of Buckhill Falls, Pa., a grand-nephew, J. Philips Zerega, and two grand-nieces.

KIRK

Mrs. Clarice R. Kirk, born July 4, 1921, in Carmel, died Friday at Fort Ord Hospital after a period of failing health.

She lived at 960F Harcourt, Seaside.

Recitation of the Rosary took place at Farlinger Funeral Home in Monterey Tuesday.

Funeral services were held yesterday with interment at San Carlos Cemetery.

Losers at home, Padres seek winning road touch

After dropping three of their last four home games, the Carmel High School varsity basketball team seeks better fortune with three successive games on the road.

The Padres played San Lorenzo Valley Tuesday and meet King City today and Gonzales next Friday.

Carmel beat Pacific Grove 60-57 and lost to Palma 65-51 to bring their Mission Trails League record to four wins and four losses. The Padres' season record is seven wins and eight losses.

Carmel's victory Friday was their third this season over a strong Pacific Grove team.

"We have P.G. on the inside of our cuff," said Carmel Coach Dick Charles. "Our kids really get up for P.G."

Charles pointed out that Pacific Grove possibly would have a 6-2 win-loss league record if the Breakers hadn't played the Padres.

John Neale scored on a jump shot with 1:45 minutes remaining in the game to tie the score at 55-55.

Carmel gained the decisive lead on free throws by John Engstrom and Kevin Cunningham and on a basket on a ball stolen by Jim Conlan.

Neale scored 16 points and Jamie Thorne 21 with 17 rebounds. Thorne maintains a 20 point game average, the third best individual scoring effort in the lague.

Kevin Cunningham, with eight points, "really played well," said Charles. "He handled the press well."

Four of Cunningham's points were scored in the last minute.

Against Palma, which leads the league with a 9-0 win-loss record, Neale scored 16 points, Cunningham 8 and Thorne 12.

Charles called the game "a lot closer" than the final score, 65-51, indicates.

Carmel led 32-28 at halftime as the Padres neutralized Palma's leading scorer, Dave Nunes. He scored only five of his 20 points in the first half.

Carmel trailed by three points at the end of the third quarter.

Palma broke the game open on their ability to score from outside, said Charles.

Neale, Carmel's second highest scorer, is out of action currently with a strep throat.

Carmel beat San Lorenzo Valley 77-62 earlier in the season, lost to King City 59-57 and lost to Gonzales 56-51.

BEHAVIOR

Behavior of both juvenile and adult law offenders best can be changed by use of the basic rules of learning—reward for good and punish the bad, probation and correctional officers were told Thursday in Monterey.

The suggestion came from Dr. Gene England who spoke to more than 30 members of the tri-county Monterey Bay Area chapter of the California Probation, Parole and Correctional Association on "Behavior Modification."

VISION CARE

BY DR. R.E. MARLIN
(consulting optometrist)

It's often asked, "What is the difference between an Optometrist, Ophthalmologist and Optician?"

This is best answered by quoting from the U.S. Government Dept. of Labor's 1970-71 Occupational Outlook Handbook, Bulletin 1650-10.

Optometrists help people improve and protect their vision. They examine eyes, make tests to determine defects in vision, and, when needed, prescribe eyeglasses, contact lenses, corrective eye exercises, or other treatment that does not require drugs or surgery. Most optometrists supply the eyeglasses prescribed, and sometimes do minor repair work such as straightening eyeglass frames. Some optometrists specialize in work such as treating visual problems of children, fitting partially sighted persons with microscopic and telescopic lenses, or other high-magnification aids; and analyzing lighting conditions that effect the efficiency of workers. A few are engaged in teaching, research, or a combination of the two.

Ophthalmologists are physicians who specialize in eye diseases and injuries, perform eye surgery, and prescribe drugs or other treatment, as well as lenses.

Dispensing Opticians fit and adjust eyeglasses according to prescriptions written by ophthalmologists or optometrists; they do not examine eyes or prescribe treatment.

A.A.U.W. LUNCHEON

In observance of Fellowships Month of the American Association of University Women, members of the Monterey Peninsula Branch will join in a luncheon meeting with Branches from Santa Cruz, Salinas, Watsonville, Gilroy and King City, on Saturday, Feb. 20, with the Salinas Branch as hostess group. Luncheon is scheduled for 12:30 at the Cherry Tree Inn, located at Washington Junior High School, Inverson and Acacia, Salinas, and will be preceded by a social hour with punch served at 11:30.

Not as extravagant as it looks.

Mag-style wheels. Sleek fastback design. Detailings that look like hand-craftsmanship. No wonder everybody thinks the MGB/GT is an extravagant car.

But it isn't. License fees are generally lower. And the MGB/GT's resale figure is usually higher because there's no styling or mechanical obsolescence built in. Even gas mileage of 25 miles per gallon is not unusual.

Beyond practicality, though, comes performance. And here, too, the MGB/GT excels. With a 1798 c.c. twin-carb engine, rack-and-pinion steering, racing-type suspension, and front disc brakes.

For comfort's sake, you get orthopedically contoured reclining bucket seats, extra padding on the doors, and pile carpeting, plus lots more luxury features.

So don't judge the MGB/GT by its looks. Not if you're looking for a practical car. Because the MGB/GT proves a car can be practical and look extravagant. Drop into the showroom and see for yourself.

New law allows businessmen to bar undesirables from premises

Carmel businessmen may remove persons they deem undesirable from their premises as a result of an ordinance approved at last week's city council meeting.

The ordinance is aimed at youth who loiter in city courts and plazas such as Fenton Plaza and the Golden Bough courtyard.

The council also unanimously passed ordinances that adjust holidays and regulate vehicle parking in the city.

The trespass ordinance states:

"It shall be unlawful for any person to remain in or upon any business permises, after being notified by the owner, lessee or other person in charge thereof to remove therefrom.

"Further, it shall be unlawful for any person, without permission, express or implied, of the owner, lessee or other person in charge of business premises, to enter upon such business premises after having been notified by said owner, lessee or other person in charge thereof to keep off or keep away therefrom."

The ordinance concludes with five exceptions to the businessman's option. The exceptions deal with civil rights guarantees.

According to Councilman Eben Whittlesey, the ordinance grew out of problems on private property outside of stores. He used Fenton Plaza as an example.

In one case a group of people, referred to as "hippies," "were in the habit of thronging on private property," said Whittlesey. They "thronged" to the extent "they interfered very seriously with normal commercial activities," the councilman said.

"It was difficult to use the shops," he added. "Some were actually sleeping on the premises."

A court case "established that without an appropriate ordinance, a businessman can't combat the problem," said Whittlesey.

City Administrator Hugh Bayless also stated that transients have been found sleeping at night on the deck of I. Magnin's.

Bayless, who drew up the ordinance, said it stems from complaints by several businessmen over the past few years.

"It's something people have been asking about for some time," said Bayless.

Inspiration for the ordinance came after the city of San Rafael passed a similar ordinance and had it upheld inappelatecourt, said Bayless. The San Rafael ordinance was directed at a motorcycle gang who "hung out" in a San Rafael parking lot, the administrator said.

EXCEPTIONS

The ordinance does not apply in the following instances:

a. Where its application results in or is coupled with an act prohibited by the Unruh Civil Rights Act or any other provision of law relating to prohibited discrimination against any person on account of color, race, religion, creed, ancestry or national origin.

b. Where its application results in or is coupled with an act prohibited by Section 365 of the California Penal Code or any other provision of law relating to duties of inn-keepers and common carriers.

c. Where its application would result in an interference with or inhibition of peaceful labor picketing or other lawful labor activities.

d. Where its application would result in an interference with or inhibition of any other exercise of a constitutionally protected right of freedom of speech such as (but not limited to) peaceful expressions of political or religious opinions, not involving offensive personal conduct.

e. Where the person who is upon another's private property or business premises is there under claim or color of legal right.

HOLIDAYS

The four-day holiday weekend starting tomorrow in honor of Lincoln and Washington's birthdays is the first to be affected by a new ordinance making Carmel's holidays uniform with other cities on the Peninsula.

The ordinance reads:

"Holidays shall be those fixed by the Government Code of the State of California, except that:

"a. Statewide election days shall not be holidays.

"b. Columbus Day, the second Monday in October, shall not be a holiday.

"c. The Friday following Thanksgiving and the last working day preceding Christmas shall be holidyas.

"In the event a holiday falls on a Saturday, municipal departments shall remain open on the preceding Friday, but employees shall be given either the preceding Friday or the following Monday off as in-lieu holidays, at the discretion of the Department Head."

As a result of the ordinance, the forthcoming holiday will be a four-day weekend instead of the previous successive three-day weekends.

The ordinance has two purppses: to bring Carmel's holidays into line with the State holiday schedule and with the Peninsula schedule.

"We don't like to be the only office closed or opened on a particular day," said City Administrator Hugh Bayless.

There is no gain or loss in the number of holidays received by city employess, said Bayless.

PARKING

In another ordinance, the council amended the Municipal Code to make it unlawful:

"To park any vehicle in any park or parkway within the City except within parking areas specifically designated as such by the City Council."

Kids make breakfast, learn about nutrition

"Will 10 pounds of bacon be enough?"

This was one of the questions asked in Elaine Green's first grade class at River School recently as students planned their own breakfast at school.

The children studied nutrition, planned a menu, bought the food, set the table and cooked and served a beautiful breakfast (with a little help from their mothers).

CARMEL CLOSEUP: Andrew Kozak

'Each animal has an individual personality...it's like doi

By JUDITH A. EISNER

Andrew Kozak, the Carmel artist who is building a growing reputation as the creator of beautifully detailed pencil drawings of animals, is a handsome, soft spoken, somewhat reticent man. His wife calls him "something of a loner."

He is a man who is justifiably proud of his accomplishments, yet is reluctant to sound boastful in speaking of them. At the same time, he makes it clear that he has worked hard and faithfully at his art; his growth and development and success as an artist are of paramount importance to him.

Andrew was born and raised in Uniontown, Pa. The country atmosphere of his birthplace was a mixed blessing for a boy who showed early promise as an artist. On the plus side, he grew up in intimate contact with nature, especially with domestic and wild animals. The shortcomings of his home town began to show up when he entered high school and, eager for art courses, galleries and museums, found there were none at hand.

Andrew grew up as "the boy who could always draw."

ENCOURAGEMENT

It was Andrew's sixth grade teacher who gave him the encouragement to pursue art as a career. "She was the only person outside my own family to encourage me," he says. "She was the first person to tell me that artists could become famous and successful."

During his freshman year in high school, he bought his first set of oil paints, as well as books on art instruction. He painted at home, on his own, and was aware of a growing disappointment that his school offered no courses to help him.

His first formal recognition came at the end of his senior year of high school.

He had seen the announcement for an annual poster contest sponsored by the Latham Humane Foundation of Palo Alto, commemorating "Be Kind to Animals Week."

He submitted several posters and won first prize in his category.

Uniontown, however, was starving him artistically. Andrew had a sister who lived in Cleveland whom he visited frequently. In Cleveland, he went to a museum for the first time. It was a mind-blowing experience for the young boy.

"My first visit to the Cleveland Museum of Art was awe-inspiring. I can't tell how tremendously stimulating it was for me to see great works of art for the first time!" Even now, years later, his face recaptures some of that boyish wonder as he retells his experience.

TO CLEVELAND

Cleveland being an art Mecca to him, he moved there after high school.

In short order, he landed a job with Halle Brothers department stores and enrolled at the Cleveland Art Institute. World War II interrupted, and in 1943 he joined the Navy.

The first thing the Navy did for him was bring him to California, where he was stationed at Alameda.

"I left home in November," he recalls. "There was the usual rain and snow and cold. I'll never forget how I felt when we detrained at Oakland, in that golden California sunshine. I made myself a promise then that I'd return and make California my home someday."

In the meanwhile, he spent all his spare time studying and attending art classes whenever possible and sketching wherever the Navy sent him.

"I carried art books, sketch pads and watercolors with me," he says. "For a while, I did a great many portraits, working in oils. I started by painting a shipmate; then other mates asked me to paint them.

"I think I improved greatly during those years," he says. "Continuous drawing and sketching are part of an artist's growth."

In 1946 he was discharged from the Navy; in 1947 he realized his dream of coming to California. He moved to Los Angeles and enrolled in the Art Center School, first as a full-time student, then on a part-time basis when he finally had to take a job.

HAD TO WORK

Like many aspiring artists, Andrew had to work in order to eat and study. He became involved in commercial art—an involvement that has lasted up to the present—as a means to an end. "It's a way to make a living," he says somewhat grimly.

Through the years, he has accumulated impressive credentials in commercial art. During a 10-year period as a free-lance artist in advertising and industrial design he counted as clients some of the largest corporations in America. He is currently senior graphics artist for Litton Scientific Support Laboratory at Fort Ord.

But commercial art has been a "necessary evil" for him, and always he has spent as much time as he can find to pursue his "real" art.

Andrew says, "I only went to Los Angeles to study. I had always planned to return to the Bay Area someday, with Carmel as my ultimate goal. I first came to Carmel in 1946 and, like so many other artist, fell in love at first sight."

He moved to San Francisco in 1950 and left in Los Angeles memories of growing acceptance, exhibitions "here and there," and a one-man show.

A milestone of San Francisco living was meeting his wife, Eloise, who lived in the apartment next door. They met at a Christmas party at Andrew's apartment and were married in 1964. Three years later they took the plunge and moved to Carmel.

Ensconced at last in a charming Carmel house, complete with a studio, a sunny patio and a growing art collection, Andrew is still striving toward the goal of being able to paint full-time.

He feels his animal drawings may make it possible.

CHRISTMAS IDEA

To Eloise goes the credit for suggesting he draw animals as special Christmas gifts for close friends. This was two years ago.

The framed drawings created quite a favorable stir and Andrew kept drawing—raccoons, lions, eagles, deer—and more people wanted to have them in their homes.

Eloise, who has an extensive background in art, placed the drawings in the Carmel Valley Art Gallery and the Pebble Beach Art Gallery where they found a ready market.

Andrew has explanations for the popularity of his drawings.

"For one thing, there is an increasing awareness of our

...ing a portrait of a child'

endangered wildlife," he says. "People have always loved animals, but at last they're no longer taking their existence for granted.

"I try to capture the feeling of the animal itself—the essence of it in its natural pose, its particular characteristics. The drawings also express my own feelings about the animal.

"They are successful as art because each animal has an individual personality. It's very much like doing a portrait of a child," he says honestly.

Andrew draws as much as time allows.

TAKES DISCIPLINE

"It takes great discipline to come home from a full-time job and get into the studio again," he admits. He works every evening and weekends and says, "Eloise has to drag me out of the house just to get me to the beach to watch sea otters or whales."

Andrew does find the time to be the "Saint Francis of the yard," according to Eloise. They feed the neighborhood cats and squirrels and a pair of saucy blue jays who come into their living room to eat peanuts.

He also appreciates belonging to the artistic community of Carmel, going to galleries and meeting and talking to other artists. Eloise, who is co-chairman of the Beacon House Art Auction this year, is very much involved in the Carmel art scene.

Both Kozaks feel that Carmel has its share of good art, but admit that there is an over-abundance of poor art around.

"I ignore the bad and seek out the good," says Andrew, who with Eloise, is slowly forming a collection of paintings by local artists in their home.

Of his growing success, he says: "More than the monetary success, I've been pleased that truly great artists and art critics have bought my work and made the most favorable comments about it."

His only concern for the future is ultimately being able to do nothing but paint; a talented watercolorist, he would also like to do larger animal portraits in acrylics, embodying the same refinement and technique that mark his pencil drawings. He would also like to do landscapes again.

Meanwhile, there is work and more work.

"A fine artist," he says, "creates his own eulogy as he lives."

High court to rule in six months on Carmel's anti-grass sitting law

The U.S. Supreme Court will take up to six months to decide whether it should hear an appeal by the Carmel City Council concerning its now famous ordinance outlawing sitting on city grass.

City Attorney William B. Burleigh said he would send the city's presentation to the court within 30 to 40 days.

If the appeal is accepted, Burleigh will argue the case before the court. It would be his first appearance before the U.S. Supreme Court.

The City Council decided to approach the high court after the State Supreme Court struck down the controversial ordinance two weeks ago.

Burleigh was highly critical of the four justices who voted against the ordinance.

"What they're saying is, if a class or minority is committing a wrong, you can't legislate against that class," he said.

The state court, in a 4-3 decision, ruled the ordinance was unconstitutional in violation of the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment.

The city council, in passing the ordinance in 1968, stated:

"The City Council of Carmel-by-the-Sea has observed an extraordinary influx of undesirables and unsanitary visitors to the City, sometimes known as 'hippies,' and finds that unless proper regulations are adopted immediately the use and enjoyment of public property will be jeopardized if not entirely eliminated..."

In a decision written by Justice Stanley Mosk, the Supreme Court said: "The Carmel City Council made no effort to define the term hippie, so as to limit the application of its hostile rhetoric to persons who are engaged in illegal conduct. Rather, the council made pejorative reference to the entire class of youthful Carmel visitors whose mode of dress and life style differ from and irritate the majority of the residents and tourists in the city."

Burleigh said the city is going to the U.S. Supreme Court in preference to writing another ordinance which deletes reference to "hippies."

If the ordinance was again challenged, and went before the state court, the justices would be apt to think the city's engaged in word trickery, Burleigh suggested.

The ordinance in full regulates conduct on public property. Its most controversial point has been a prohibition against sitting on lawns. In practice, this has meant people can't sit on the lawn at Devendorf Park—gathering point for what the city council called a "hippie" influx.

The pertinent section reads:

"On any public property it shall be unlawful for any person to:

"Climb any tree; or walk, stand or sit upon monuments, vases, fountains, railings, fences, planted areas, or upon any other property not designed or customarily used for such purposes, or to sit on any sidewalks or steps, or to lie or sit on any lawns."

CARMEL HOST LION CLUB

The ladies of members of the Carmel Host Lions Club were guests of the club at its weekly luncheon meeting at the Pine Inn Tuesday.

Regular business was dispensed with and the club's immediate past president, Jerry Winters, and his partner, Miss Sioux Scott, entertainers at the Outrigger Restaurant on Cannery Row, showed color slides of their recent tour of Vietnam where they performed for American troops.

They presented their song-and-laugh show several times daily in steaming tropical heat.

The tour was under the auspices of the United Services Organization and the U.S. Department of Defense.

PADRE TRAILS CAMERA CLUB

The Padre Trails Camera Club will meet next Thursday at 8 p.m. in Brey Hall of Carmel High School.

A show entitled "From Urbino to Naples" will be presented by Mrs. Kay Chase. This is a story in pictures, words and music of a trip down the shank of the Italian boot.

Members will submit pictorial color slides for judging for the month's Photographic Society of America Contest.

Interested color photographers are invited to the meeting and to membership. Additional information may be had by writing Box 4994, Carmel, or calling club president, Galyn Hammond, at 375-7188.

WOMAN'S CLUB

Mrs. Dorothy C. Constans, member of the American Institute of Interior Designers, will address the Carmel Woman's Club Feb. 22 at 2 p.m.

Mrs. Constans graduated from Parsons of New York and took postgraduate studies in Parsons' branches in Paris and Italy. She taught at Montana State College in Bozeman, at the University of Oregon in Eugene and at the University of Washington in Seattle. She was later head of the Studio of Interior Design at Frederick and Nelson, the well known department store in Seattle.

Since coming to Carmel, Mrs. Constans has maintained her own studios as interior decorator. She has given many lectures, has taught private as well as adult education classes and at present is teaching interior decoration to the Officers' Wives Club at the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School.

Mrs. Constans will demonstrate to the Carmel Woman's Club her skills as an artist and decorator with ideas for the adaptability of modern colors and fabrics, and will bring materials for display. Essentially, she is a traditionalist.

Mrs. Stuart S. Goode will introduce Mrs. Constans.

Pouring will be Mmes. L. Abinante, Myron Hayward, George Marshall and Miss Lila Adams.

Hostesses are Mmes. Edward Jackemy, Mrs. Peter A. Kantor, Weldon H. McBee, J. Frank McKay, Hobart Moses, Edmund W. Murphy, Morris F. Sheldon and R.G. Watson.—Mrs. J.R. Lynas

MIDDLE SCHOOL PARENTS CLUB

Parents of Carmel Middle School students are invited to attend a meeting of the Carmel Middle Club Parents' Club on Tuesday, Feb. 16 at 7:30 for a program presented by the Applied Arts Department.

Following coffee in the library, demonstrations will be given by students in Art, Crafts, Industrial Arts and Home Economics.

CITY GETS $$ FOR ROAD PROJECT

Supervisor Willard Branson announced last week that the City of Carmel has been granted $15,807.00 in "Aid to Cities" funds to help finance the recent improvement at the intersection of Ocean Ave. and Carpenter St. This project consisted of widening, reconstruction, and paving.

The contractor for the project was Granite Construction Co.

The "Aid to Cities" funds assist the City of Carmel in improving its "Select Streets" which connect to other streets and roads forming a network of Select roads throughout Monterey County.

NOTICE INVITING SEALED PROPOSALS - WATER POLLUTION CONTROL PLANT PROJECT - CARMEL SANITARY DISTRICT

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Sanitary Board of Carmel Sanitary District, Monterey County, California, will receive up to, but not later than, 1:30 o'clock P.M. of Tuesday, the 9th day of March, 1971, sealed bids for the award of a contract for the furnishing of all labor, materials, methods or processes, implements, tools, machinery, equipment and all utilities, transportation and other services required to construct, install and place in satisfactory operating condition certain water pollution control plant facilities, together with all appurtenances thereto, in strict accordance with the plans and specifications therefor, dated October 27, 1970, prepared by Kennedy Engineers, the District Engineer, and filed October 27, 1970, in the office of the Secretary of the District.

Said sealed bids shall be delivered to the Secretary of the Sanitary Board of said Carmel Sanitary District on or before 1:30 o'clock P.M. on Tuesday, the 2nd day of March, 1971, at the office of the District, Carmel Rancho Center, Carmel Rancho Boulevard at Carmel Valley Road, (next to Hatchcover Restaurant), Carmel, California 93921, said time being not less than ten (10) days from the time of the first publication of this notice. Bids will be publicly opened and examined on said date and hour by the District Secretary. Said bids will be referred to and considered by the Sanitary District Board at their next succeeding meeting following approval of the bids by the Federal Water Quality Administration.

Each bid shall be in accordance with the plans, specifications and other contract documents now on file in said District office. Copies of said documents may be inspected in said District office or at the office of Kennedy Engineers, 657 Howard Street, San Francisco, California 94105, and may be obtained at either office upon deposit therefor of $50.00 per set, which will be refunded only to general contractors submitting bona fide proposals to the District.

All proposals or bids shall be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check payable to the order of the District amounting to ten percent (10) of the bid, or by a bond in said amount and payable to said District, signed by the bidder and a corporate surety. Said check shall be forfeited or said bond shall become payable to said District in case the bidder depositing the same does not, within fifteen (15) days after written notice that the contract has been awarded to him, enter into a contract with the District, the faithful performance of which shall be secured by an undertaking in the amount of one hundred percent (100) of the amount so bid, with sureties satisfactory to the said Sanitary Board, and which shall be accompanied by a labor and material bond in a sum equal to fifty percent (50) of the amount of said bid, under the provisions of Chapter 3, comprising Sections 4200 to 4208, inclusive, of the Government Code of the State of California.

Notice is hereby given that the Sanitary Board of the Carmel Sanitary District, on December 8, 1970, adopted a resolution determining the general prevailing rate of per diem wages in the locality in which the public work herein provided is to be done, for each craft or type of workman required to execute the contract, a copy of which is contained in and made a part of the specifications for said work, and a copy of which is hereto attached and by reference incorporated herein. The contractor will be required to comply with all provisions of Article 2, Chapter 1, Part 7, Division 2 (commencing with Section 1770) of the Labor Code.

Certain technical sections of Specifications are modified.

Application has been or may be made to the Federal Water Quality Administration of the United States Government for financial assistance to the work proposed under this solicitation. The United States Government, in implementation of EXECUTIVE ORDER 11246 (Equal Employment Opportunity), of September 24, 1965, requires its constituent Agencies, which provide financial assistance to construction, to conduct Equal Employment Opportunity Compliance Reviews prior to award.

Accordingly, the apparent low bidder under this solicitation should be prepared to attend a meeting that will be scheduled by the Federal Water Quality Administration after opening of bids, but before award, where he will be requested to specify what affirmative action he has taken or proposed to take to assure equal employment opportunity on the project. Until a determination has been made by the Federal Water Quality Administration that a satisfactory compliance position exists on the part of the prospective contractor, and the determination has been concurred in by the Environmental Protection Agency, Office for Equal Opportunity, award of the contract will not be authorized.

The Board reserves the privilege of rejecting any and all bids or to waive any irregularities or informalities in any bid or in the bidding.

Dated: February 9th, 1971.

CBA adopts policy on alcoholism

The Carmel Business Association meeting last week adopted a policy on alcoholism—which was called "a recurring problem affecting the efficiency of the work force and the quality of life in every community, including our own."

An Alcoholism Council was also formed of members Mary Ross, Bill Blauer, Bernard Anderson, Richard Conklin, S.C. Crane, Frank Kenny, Dan Minnick, Earl Stewart and Stephen Thigpin.

The policy was adopted as follows:

"We recognize that...

—Alcoholism, or problem drinking, is an illness and should be treated as such.

—The majority of problem drinkers can be helped to full recovery and should be offered assistance to obtain appropriate treatment.

—The decision to undertake treatment is the responsibility of the individual and no one should be forced to accept assistance for any illness, including alcoholism.

—Early attention to any illness, alcoholism included, is to the interest of both employer and employee, since an employee cannot be retained whose work performance continues to be substandard because of untreated illness.

—Unsatisfactory job performance, not the individual's drinking, is the reason for an employer's concern. An employee's choice to drink or not to drink is a personal matter.

—Confidential handling of the diagnosis and treatment of alcoholism is essential and will be respected.

the mayor's report

By BARNEY LAIOLO

I'm writing this article at McCall, Idaho, which is indeed a beautiful area. This has been a most interesting and exciting trip. The reason for being here is to witness the Winter Carnival. To us of Carmel this is a glorified version of the Sand Castle event on Carmel beach. If you've never seen the artistic work that is done with snow, you can't imagine the talent exhibited by these people.

Just to mention a few of the displays—a replica of the Last Supper, completely done in snow and frozen by adding water. The facial expressions, dinner plates, wine goblets, all complete in themselves. This was approximately thirty feet long and eight feet wide. It won first prize and indeed was a fantastic display.

Another winner was a miner on the top of a hill pulling his donkey who was refusing to budge. The expressions on both the face of the man and the donkey were unbelievable. Then there was the Liberty Bell complete with crack fitted into an appropriate frame done by the phone company employees. The scale of this particular one was also large, measuring approximately ten feet high and eight feet in diameter. I could go on and on.

This being skiing country, a ride on the ski lift to about 11,000 feet was in order. Upon reaching the top, a most spectacular view of the whole area was superb. The great areas covered with snow and the frozen lakes and rivers below gave one a feeling of quiet and serenity unequalled. There's plenty of what they all brag about right here just for the searching.

One of the events of the Carnival was the Mayor's Snowmobile Race. Not being a skier and having had no previous experience on a snowmobile, I had quite a time. Having arrived the day before the race, it did afford a little opportunity to get acquainted with one of these little monsters. Believe me, don't knock it if you haven't tried it.

I had more fun trying to figure out how to make a turn without tipping over. Well, as it worked out, the time came for the race. All the mayors were lined up and each was given one test run around the track. Then came the big event. All took off and made the first lap OK. On the second lap I had gained a little more confidence so I managed to get up to almost 50 mph on the straightaway. But came the turn and I didn't lean quite enough, so over I went, buggy and all. I managed to get up and back on and completed the race.

As you might know, I didn't win but had the distinction of being the first mayor to spill. All in all, this was a great bit of fun and I would like to say that all the people I met here in Idaho are most gracious and warm. They live and let live and enjoy doing what they're doing.

To get back to city business, the last Council meeting was better attended than usual considering we had no particularly interesting items on the agenda. I thank those who attended.

At the meeting, the new contract for garbage hauling and disposal was awarded to the Roscelli Corp. I'm glad they were the successful bidder for they have been loyal and fair to our citizens. In case you didn't read it, there is one section in the new contract which covers pick-up of tree cuttings. This means that for $1.00 a month extra, they will pick up one 32-pound plastic bag of garden cuttings per week. They will also pick up one additional can of garbage for $1.25. You must notify them if you want this done. Please check with the Roscelli Corp. of your wishes regarding the above charges. The new contract goes into effect July 1.

In order to slow down traffic and to help eliminate some of the intersection accidents, several new stop signs were authorized as recommended by the Parking-Traffic Committee.

Our records show more speeding tickets and other traffic citations are being issued which shows our police are doing their job. A combined effort on the part of our citizens will help make Carmel a safer place to live.

Library petitions circulating

Petitions advocating a tax to support Harrison Memorial Library are circulating in the Carmel Unified School District.

The petitions request the County Board of Supervisors to levy a property tax of not more than 5 cents per $100 of assessed value in service areas 42 and 43 or not more than 3 cents in the Carmel Unified School District.

The money will provide approximately one-third of the library's operating budget.

The petition points out that Carmel property owners pay 38.7 cents per $100 of assessed valuation to support the library.

The Carmel City Council maintains that Carmel taxpayers are supporting a library which is used by many people residing outside the city limits.

The council recently decided to withdraw from county library affiliation in an economy move.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE
(C.C.L.T.Co. No. 111857)

On Tuesday, February 23, 1971, at 10:00 a.m., in the lobby of the office of COAST COUNTIES LAND TITLE COMPANY, 439 Tyler Street, in the City of Monterey, County of Monterey, State of California, Coast Counties Investment Company, as Trustee, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, in lawful money of the United States, the real property situate in the County of Monterey, State of California, described as follows:

All that portion of Lots 4, 5 and 6 in Block A-1 lying west of a line drawn across said lots parallel with the west line of San Antonio Avenue and 100 feet west therefrom, as said Lots and Block and Avenue are shown on the map of "Addition No. 6, Carmel by the Sea, Monterey County, Cal." filed February 9, 1910, in Map Book 2, "Cities and Towns," at page 23 in the office of the County Recorder of the County of Monterey, State of California; said portion of said Lots being more particularly described as follows, to-wit:

BEGINNING on the East line of Scenic Road at the Northwesterly corner of said Lot 4; thence East along the North line of said Lot 4, 135.25 feet; thence South 120 feet across said Lots 4, 5 and 6 to the South line of said Lot 6; thence West along the South line of said Lot 6, 140.12 feet to the East line of Scenic Road; and thence along the East line of Scenic Road North 2° 18' East, 120.09 feet to the place of beginning.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances, to satisfy the obligations secured by, and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in a certain Deed of Trust, executed by IRENE S. STARKEY, a widow, Trustor, to COAST COUNTIES INVESTMENT COMPANY, a corporation, Trustee, for the benefit and security of CHARLOTTE DOUD VECKI, a married woman, dated December 31, 1968, and recorded January 2, 1969, in Reel 587 of Official Records of Monterey County, California, at Page 817.

Notice of Default of said obligation and election to sell said real property was recorded October 21, 1970, in Reel 671 of Official Records of Monterey County, California, at Page 950. Nothing has been paid on account of the principal or interest on said loan subsequent to the filing of said Notice of Default.

This notice is given in compliance with the written application heretofore maide on the Trustee by the said Beneficiary.

The owner and holder of the promissory note and the indebtedness secured by said Deed of Trust, or any other person may purchase at said sale.

Many Shady Oak Trees

A custom-built, nicely landscaped 4-bedroom home in Oak Hills. The face and raised hearth of a large moonstone fireplace extends full width of sunken living room. Ornamental wrought iron separates living room from formal dining room. Efficient kitchen has breakfast or wet bar adjoining the family room. Master bedroom has separate dressing area, glass door to rear garden, lowered tub in bath. Many of the walls are papered. Insulation was installed in all walls and most of the ceiling during construction 3 years ago, which has saved expenses on the forced-air natural gas heat in the spacious home. Owner says he will leave the deep freeze, drapes, and all but one of the light fixtures. There are no close neighbors in back of this property. Is It True that the Fulfillment Exists

Before the Need Arises?

I don't know but I am willing to test the concept and perhaps give it a "little push" by making known the needs, earnest and sincere, of some very nice people who have appointed me as their home finder.

The request, perhaps closest to my heart, is that of a dear lady – just a bit on in years – who says, in her old-worldishly fashion, "I want a little place of my own, very small, only one bedroom, but with a little yard where I may take a breath of air." So amusing, she always tells me not to let her forget to bring along her purse so she can make her deposit. (It would help if the house were close enough for her to walk to shopping as she does not drive.)

AND –

For a nice couple who have always known that Carmel would one day be their home – he has now retired and they are so anxious to find their home here. They have a special fondness for the Mission Tract area – love the Bird Sanctuary – but will not limit themselves to that area. They want 2 bedrooms and 2 baths around $50,000.

AND –

Another couple, long-time Carmel residents who own their own home here, but now find that they need to be within closer walking distance to shopping. 2 bedrooms and in the low $30's if possible.

AND –

Another couple, who have rented a summer house here for years, wish to give up all else and make Carmel their one and only home. They would like it to be south of Ocean Ave., reasonably close to the beach, have 2 bedrooms and 2 baths (their son feels that a little extra room for occasional visits from the grandchildren would be an added inducement). In the upper $50's.

LINES FROM LOIS

In 1907 the above valentine card was received by Mrs. B. Scharles in Allentown, Pennsylvania. We borrowed it from the collection of Irene Mackes, her daughter. We use it to remind you that there is always "something doin' " around our office in the way of [illegible] these:

Great home for a growing family who likes a bedroom for each child. Near downtown Carmel, see our mini-mansion. $49,500.

Carmel doll house in country adobe, 2 bedrooms, brand new kitchen, lovely garden, corner lot, and only $39,500.

Weekender or permanent home for a couple, with 2 baths, 2 bedrooms, 28-foot living room, little studio; a rustic contemporary and you can walk to town. $39,500.

Another small, beautifully built home. Minimum care garden – and a very easy walking distance to town. Only 7 years old and only $39,500.

Delightful home for a retired couple in sunny Carmel Knolls. Meticulously kept home with plank floors, a full dining room, and a gourmet kitchen. $52,500.

Exquisite in every detail, with perhaps the most fabulous kitchen in Carmel, a 4-bedroom, 3-bath home we have just listed for $93,500.

Wonderful family home on a cul-de-sac and a canyon in Carmel Knolls. Wonderful financing you can assume, too: $27,259 at 5¾ percent with Prudential. Full price $59,500.

Also on Carmel Point, probably the most perfect, most easily maintained 2-bedroom, 2-bath home in Carmel for only $55,000. Sunny, enclosed entry court is "special".

A delicious country tuck-a-way, hexagon shaped, built of adobe, 2 master bedrooms, sauna, tile floors, contoured rugs. Sweeping Valley views but near the village. $49,500.

Would you like a tiny farm with a city living room on the River, a huge garage for your puttering projects, guest house, orchard, freedom! And all for just $52,500.

Two-and-a-half-acre hilltop with ocean view, swimming pool, accommodations for horses, early California style home with 3 bedrooms, 3 baths, for $85,000.

In Rancho Canada, a big house planned for a family, with many bedrooms, park-like setting, ideal service areas, family kitchen–for children, it's the greatest! $115,000.

3 complete little cottages - lots of possibilities for a home or weekender PLUS – located on 2½ acres near Highlands Inn. $95,000.

Or a parcel of 3 acres with a charming old house on one, a guest house on the other, one completely unimproved. All ocean view. $100,000 for the package.

The owner has asked us to submit all offers which are reasonable for a custom-built and furnished ocean-view home with beautiful grounds, lovely with bougainvillea right now. Care to bid?

'Stop' signs coming for 13th Avenue

The city will erect stop signs along 13th Avenue in an effort to slow the flow of vehicle traffic.

Citizens complaints at the rates of speed along the street, coupled with frequent collisions, influenced the City Council to order the signs.

The street has become an artery for people leaving Scenic for the highway.

Stop signs will be placed within the month at:

San Carlos and 13th to halt vehicles entering from the west;

Lincoln and 13th to halt vehicles entering from east and west;

Casanova and 13th to halt vehicles entering from east and west;

Carmelo and 13th to halt vehicles entering from north and south.

The pattern of a stop sign every two blocks, with the cross street stopped at the intervening intersection, is standard in Carmel.

During discussion of the matter, the council acknowledged reluctance to add more signs to the city landscape.

"Stricter police enforcement is a preferential way to halt speeding," said Councilman Frank Falge.

In other street action the council referred to committee a resolution to establish additional "no parking" zones.

The proposed zones are:

—The area extending 20 feet northward from 5th Avenue on the west side of Lincoln Street.

—The street area in front of and approximately 15 fert south of the garage locate. on Lot 13 of Block 58, west side of Lincoln Street between 5th and 4th Avenues.

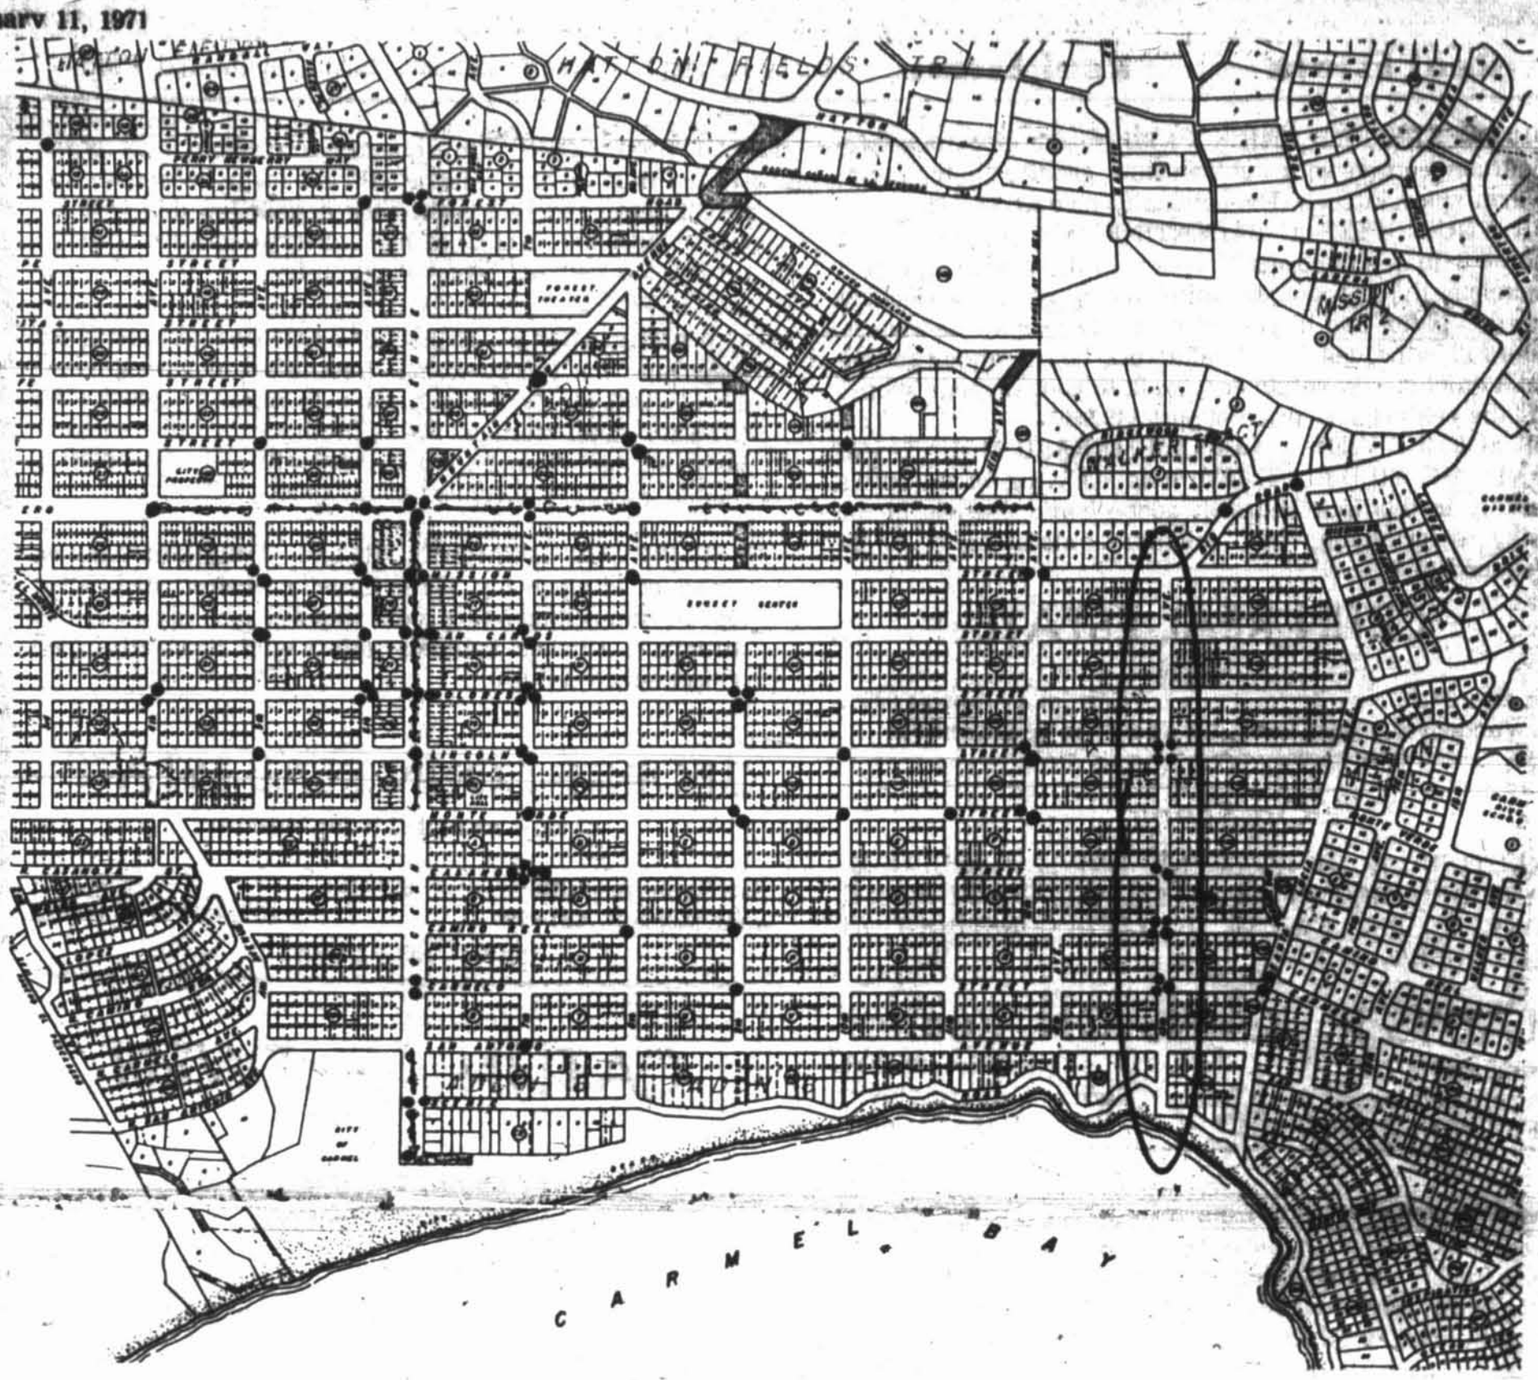
—Between the driveways on the west side of the dead end of Lincoln Street immediately south of 3rd Avenue.

The zones will not reduce the number of city off-street parking places, said City Administrator Hugh Bayless.

The council also set a public hearing date of March 3, 8 p.m., for an ordinance establishing regulations for parking lots in the district zoned R-1.

The proposed ordinance states:

"It shall be unlawful to construct, maintain, or use a parking lot in Zone R-1 unless it shall have been rezoned to Zone R1-P3 as provided for in this code. For the purposes of this section, a parking lot is defined as a site or a portion of a site in the R-1 District, not covered by a roofed structure, which is regularly used for the parking of vehicles not belonging to residents of the site or to guests of those residents, whether or not any consideration is given for the parking of such vehicles."



THIRTEENTH AVENUE, circled on map, has become an "artery" for traffic leaving the beach for the highway. Dots indicate vehicle collisions in the city over the past five years. Thirteen are at intersections without stop signs on Thirteenth Avenue. New stop signs are proposed at San Carlos, Lincoln, Casanova and Carmelo.
